SENATE VOTES TO BAR DISABILITY TO $2,000 SALARIED U.S. WORKERS

High Bureau Salaries to "Incapacitated" Men Attacked by Reed.

HINES WOULD CUT AID IN HOSPITAL CASES

Urges Immediate Appropriation of Fund for Eighteen New Institutions.

The snowball of criticism which Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, figuratively started rolling against Veterans' Bureau officials who draw large salaries, the while they receive considerable amounts for disability, assumed something of the appearance of an avalanche yesterday.

Senator David Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, took up the fight and as a result the Senate amended the independent offices appropriation bill to forbid Government employes whose salaries are more than $2,000 a year from receiving compensation as disabled war officers.

While the Senate was adopting the Reed amendment Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' Bureau, was before the Senate finance committee urging that there be a 50 per cent reduction in disability allowances for veterans during the time they are receiving hospital treatment. Gen. Hines asked prompt action on his proposal that $10,000,000 be appropriated for construction of eighteen new hospitals for veterans.

Asked to Prepare Bill.

Reduction of their compensation allowance while in hospitals, Gen. Hines said, he believed necessary to give veterans an incentive to get out of hospitals when their condition no longer demanded they remain for treatment. Members of the committee asked him to draft a bill to achieve the purpose.

William Wolff Smith, general counsel of the Veterans' Bureau, was singled out for especial attention on the floor of the Senate in the course of Senator Reed's speech. Mr. Smith also was given particular attention by Representative Blanton, Wednesday.

But Mr. Smith was only one of many named by Senator Reed. Several of those he named are in the Veterans' Bureau at Washington and others are employed outside Washington.

Senator Reed was so sarcastic in his references to the diagnoses made by doctors of the ailments of doctors that Senator Royal Copeland (Democrat), New York, rose to defend the profession of which he is a member when he isn't a senator.

Finds Affinity Too Close.

Senator Reed said he was not criticising doctors alone, as was shown in the fact that Mr. Smith was a lawyer, but, the Pennsylvania solon made clear, in his opinion the doctors and lawyers got together too close, and it smacked of a proposal in which "you scratch my back and I'll scratch yours."

The fact that these men were employed by the Veterans' Bureau at large salaries, as entirely competent to perform important duties, at the same time the bureau had declared them partly incapacitated, proved, Senator Reed said, the diagnoses of their ailments had been too liberal.

Senator Reed named Mr. Smith as drawing a salary of $9,000 a year and $187.50 a month for disability compensation. Dr. B. A. McDermott gets $5,000 salary and $125 disability compensation, he said.

"Dr. McDermott puts Mr. Smith on the retired list," Senator Reed said, in explanation of the way the "back scratching" works. "Mr. Smith approves Dr. McDermott being retired.

"Shocking and Scandalous."

"This is shocking and scandalous. It is a widely prevalent scandal and it is astounding to find how much kidney trouble, stomach trouble, chronic bronchitis, and similar ailments, is to be found among the

Campbell Sets Record With 245-Mile Pace

Segrave's Auto Mark Is Broken by Briton on Daytona Sands.

By TED GILL.

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Capt. Malcolm Campbell, 46-year-old British racing car driver, today established a new world's automobile speed record of 245.733 miles an hour on the sands of the natural beach speedway here.

Roaring twice over the course in his huge 1,450-horsepower Bluebird machine, he exceeded the previous record by 14.371 miles an hour, and became the first man in the world ever to attain a land speed of four miles a minute or more.

The previous record was 231 miles an hour, established here in 1929 by the late Sir Henry Segrave, also of England, who later was killed in a motorboat accident at Lake Windermere.

Campbell was clocked at 246.575 miles an hour on his first run southward over the course and on his second trial at 244.897. His average speed for the kilometer was 246.086 speed for the kilometer was 246.086.

After completing both runs, Campbell expressed disappointment that

FOOD LOAN BILL COMPROMISE IS BEFORE HOOVER

Senate Leaders Insist on Assurance Fund Will Go to Stricken.

PRESIDENT DECLINES TO COMMIT HIMSELF

Opposes Construing Terms of Legislation in Advance; Agreement Seen.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover had under advisement last night a proposed compromise in the big food fight whereby $25,000,000 would be made available as loans to the drought stricken farmers.

After activities by the fixers extending throughout the day, he was represented as not being opposed to the proposition in itself, but there was a disagreement between him and the Senate influences as to whether he should give assurance that the loans would be made for the personal needs of the farmers. The necessity for some assurance grew out of the effort of the fixers to spare feelings as they did last December and not use the words "food, clothing and medical supplies" in the bill.

Rehabilitation Is Questioned.

The plan that was drawn up would simply make the loans available for rehabilitation of the farmers, but after mulling over this language the Democrats, particularly, decided that in view of their experience in December they would like to know how Secretary of Agriculture Hyde would construe such terminology.

The Secretary went up to the Capitol and in conferences with senators was willing to give assurance that the loans would be made available for the purposes desired by the senators. He said, however, he would like to talk it over with the President, and after doing so telephoned back to the Capitol that the President did not feel it incumbent upon the administration to say in advance how the language used in legislation should be interpreted.

The fixers were blocked there, and it was in this state that the matter rested overnight. It does not seem to be an insurmountable obstacle, however, and certainly is not if there is sincerity on all sides that loans will be made available.

Hyde Applies Fund Strictly.

Ordinarily there would not be any such haggling over details. But when the Senate and the administration reached an impasse just before Christmas on this same principle, that of making loans for food, clothing, &c., the fixers, in an effort to save everybody's face, provided that the $45,000,000 then being appropriated for loans for seeds should also be available for "other purposes incident to crop cultivation."

Those senators who argued at the time that that meant loans for food and clothing, &c., contended that a fed farmer was inescapably an incident to crop cultivation. Other senators said at the time they were willing to bet their boots that the language would not be so interpreted and, sure enough, just as soon as the bill was passed Mr. Hyde made known that he had not the slightest idea of lending any of that money for any purposes other than seed.

In administering this money the Department of Agriculture takes a first lien on the farmer's next year's crop, and the sponsors of the additional appropriation now contend that this first lien makes it impossible for the farmer to borrow any money from any other source for his other needs.

POSTAL LEASES SOP FOR G.O.P. DONORS, CLAIM

Blaine Charges Campaign Fund Backers Were Beneficiaries.

ST. PAUL AGREEMENT DENIED BY BARTLETT

Former Postoffice Official Says Contract Signed in His Absence.

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Blaine, of the Senate committee investigating postoffice leases, announced yesterday he would attempt to prove that beneficiaries of these leases contributed $1,250,000 to the last two Republican presidential campaign funds.

Senator Blaine's announcement was made after the committee opened its general investigation of the Government's postal leasing policy by questioning former Assistant Postmaster General Bartlett about leases made during his term of office.

Bartlett was asked by Blaine if he would be "surprised to know" that beneficiaries of the postal leases had contributed about a "million and a quarter dollars" to the campaign funds used to elect Presidents Coolidge and Hoover.

Heard They Contributed.

The former postal official said he would rather not answer the question, but testified he had heard people say they should be "given fair treatment because they had given to campaign funds in the past."

Senator Blaine said later he would develop the basis for his question today. Bartlett said while he was in the department he was called "the Yankee Jew." "They said I was pretty hard on these fellows," he explained.

Meanwhile Postmaster General Brown was challenged in the House by Representative Mass (Republican), Minnesota, to make public an investigation of charges by Mass against Charles J. Moos, St. Paul postmaster.

Postmaster Is Accused.

Mr. Mass asserted Mr. Moos was linked directly with a St. Paul postoffice lease which, along with about 6,000 others, is under investigation by the Blaine committee.

The Minnesota representative said Mr. Brown had "forgiven, excused or condoned" Mr. Moos after an investigation that "substantiated" the charges.

Mr. Bartlett testified to the Senate committee that his signature to a substitute lease for the St. Paul Commercial Station Postoffice, which has been condemned by some members of Congress as "fraudulent," was affixed by a subordinate official on the order for Former Postmaster General New.

The substitute lease eliminated a clause in the former contract, he said, by which the government could cancel its lease and in return the lessee, Jacob Kulp, of Chicago, reduced the annual rental from $120,700 to $120,000.

Signed in His Absence.

Mr. Bartlett said he was opposed to the elimination of the cancellation clause, and his opposition was well known in the department, but while he was away Mr. New called Charles F. Trotter, Deputy Assistant Postmaster General, into his office, and told him to make out the contract, "and do it today."

Mr. Trotter signed, Bartlett said, and placed a "T" under the signature to show he had done it.

When Mr. Bartlett returned, he said he saw a memorandum from Mr. Trotter explaining the signature and its circumstances. He asked Seantor Blaine if the committee had that

BUILDING ASSOCIATION IS LOANED $910,000 BY U. S. IN CHECKING RUN

Post Staff Photo.

Flanked by motorcycle policemen, escorted by two automobiles bearing Secret Service men, and protected by almost two score policemen and detectives, this Treasury armored car bore $910,000 yesterday afternoon to the Perpetual Building Association to bolster up reserve funds during continuation of its run.

Machine Gun Squad and Extra Police Guard Against Robbers.

$200,000 DEPOSITED IN FIRM YESTERDAY

Bankers, Leading Patrons Reassure Crowd and Put New Funds in Concern.

Bulwarked by close to a million dollars advanced from the Treasury, the gratuitous offer of "unlimited millions" in loans from Washington financial institutions, a swelling sum of deposits and countless expressions of confidence in its stability, the Perpetual Building Association yesterday easily survived a sustained run that finally dissipated itself with every withdrawal request granted.

Developing rapidly Wednesday morning on the heels of rumors circulated maliciously on anonymous telephone calls to patrons, continuing until 6:30 o'clock Wednesday night when the offices closed belatedly, the run was resumed promptly upon the opening of the banking house at 9 o'clock yesterday morning and appeared curbed when the last "withdrawing" patron was tendered the full value of his account at 5:45 o'clock in the afternoon.

An announcement at that time outside the building at Eleventh and E streets northwest that the institution would continue to pay until every request had been met brought no further demands. With the lobby in front of the pay-off counter at last deserted, the doors were finally shut and bolted.

Police Guarding Building.

Inside and outside an all-night vigil was maintained by a sizeable force of police and detectives, stationed to guard the $910,000 in bills sent there as precautionary funds by the Treasury on request from the Washington Clearing House to allay fears of customers and bolster the cash reserves of the institution.

On the balcony running above the barricaded vaults, a picked squad manned a machine gun, prepared for any eventuality, with a clean sweep of the two exposed sides of the building, in case any attempt at robbery started. Tear gas bombs likewise were in evidence, and every vantage point, both inside the building and outdoors, was covered.

Inspector William S. Shelby, in command of the detective bureau, who cooperated with the institution's officials in posting the guard, declared last night that detectives had been detailed to the case in an effort to obtain a clew to the identity of a person or persons who circulated the rumor which started the run. A reward of $1,000 was posted the previous day by the bank's officers for information which would lead to detection of the criminal.

Secret Service Men Act.

The Department of Justice has evidenced keen interest in the run and stood ready to cooperate in prosecuting any circulator of false or malicious rumors about any banking institution here, it was learned. Secret Service agents likewise figured in developments at the bank, where they mingled in the crowd and aided in protecting the large amount sent from the Treasury.

Inspector Shelby, however, frankly admitted the apparent hopelessness of seeking to track down the fabricator of the false rumor with the sole leads consisting of several anonymous telephone calls. In no instance did a person receiving one of the fake calls attempt to trace down the caller at the time, Inspector Shelby explained.

Edward C. Baltz, secretary of the Perpetual, expressed optimism last night over the favorable turn the run took in late afternoon in dwindling to the vanishing point and the confidence of the bulk of its patrons, not only in failing to seek their money, but in making substantial deposits in the face of the anxiety of a comparatively small percentage of depositors.

$200,000 Deposited Yesterday.

OFFICER FLAYS NAVY ON BUTLER'S CASE

Judge Advocate General of Guard Talks, Defying Court-Martial.

MUSSOLINI IS RAPPED

Philadelphia, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Col. Frederick Taylor Pusey, judge advocate general of the Pennsylvania National Guard, in an address today said the Navy was "making a mountain out of a mile hill" in the court-martial proceedings against Maj. Smedley D. Butler. He spoke at the Poor Richard Club luncheon.

Col. Pusey said naval officers were constantly "muzzled," while Army officers might criticise whomsoever they wished.

"Why can Gens. Pershing, Scott, Bullard and the rest get away with criticisms of French generals or almost anybody they pick out, and even Premier Mussolini can say, 'The American people are a lot of hogs who want to keep all the gold,' while Butler receives a gag?" he demanded.

Speaking to reporters, later, he said: "I'm judge advocate general of the Pennsylvania National Guard and subject to court-martial, but let them hear what I think and then do as they please."

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Four years ago, in the city of San Diego, Calif., Maj. Gen. Smedley Butler, of the Marine Corps, attended a party given by Col. Alexander Williams, also of the Marine Corps. A few hours afterward, Col. Williams appeared at a dance in an intoxicated condition, and Gen. Butler ordered him arrested and court-martialed.

The news of that episode turned thousands of Americans against Gen. Butler. In their eyes he had committed a serious breach of social etiquette—he had told on his host.

While the Navy Department was announcing yesterday the charges that now have been lodged against Gen. Butler for calling Premier Mus-

POST UNOFFICIALLY DENIED CRAMTON

Bicentennial Body Reaches No Decision Regarding $10,000 Job.

CONGRESS CONTEST SEEN

The George Washington Bicentennial Commission met yesterday and considered the selection of Representative Louis C. Cramton (Republican), Michigan, as associate director at a salary of $10,000 a year and privately determined not to name the "lame duck" representative to the post.

The Cramton appointment, however, was a hot potato which the commission had no desire to clasp firmly, and official announcement made by William Tyler Page, clerk of the House and executive secretary of the commission, merely said that no action had been taken.

Representative Cramton, Mr. Page told the commission, had told him that "he was not, and never had been a candidate for the position of assistant director of the bicentennial commission."

Some one is going to get the $10,000-a-year job according to plans of the commission, of which Senator Simeon Fess (Republican), Ohio, is chairman, but formal decision has not been reached although commission members did not deny that many of its members felt that Mr. Cramton's usefulness in the post had been dissipated by the attack on him by Senator Thaddeus Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, and Mr. Cramton's very heated reply to Mr. Caraway in the course of which he called the senator "a plain and unadulterated liar."

Selection of the associate director is threatening to become a matter of bitter contest between House and Senate. One member of the House yesterday declared that unless Representative Cramton got the job, so far as he was concerned he would be willing to scrap the commission. The importance of that statement lies in

ROVER TO PUSH TEST CASE AGAINST SMITH

District Attorney Will Act in Court Fight Ordered by Senate.

POWER POST IS AT ISSUE

As a result of the action of the Senate yesterday authorizing him to take action to remove George Otis Smith, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, it was understood United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, as soon as he is officially authorized, will file a petition seeking to "test the right" of Mr. Smith to hold his office.

Mr. Rover yesterday refused to discuss his possible actions in the case, explaining that he had not received an official copy of the resolution.

"All of this may be true," Mr. Rover told newspapermen, "but there is no official record, and until there is I have no intention of making any statement."

Under a decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Newman vs. U. S. ex relation Frazille, it was decided that either the Attorney General or the United States attorney for the District of Columbia could institute quo warranto proceedings. The Attorney General was not designated by the Senate because of the opinion he already has given in the Smith case.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday ordered a court test of George Otis Smith's right to hold office as chairman of the Power Commission.

After confirming, reconsidering and rejecting his nomination, it adopted a resolution directing the district attorney here to institute quo warranto proceedings against him.

Together with Commissioners Marcel Garsaud and Claude L. Draper, Mr. Smith was confirmed just before the Christmas holidays. While Congress was in recess, the three held a meeting and discharged Solicitor Rus-

CANNON FIGHTS BACK AT WRITING EXPERTS

Bishop's Tenacious Battle Is Likely to Prolong Inquiry Into His Conduct.

REPORTER IS ON STAND

Bishop James Cannon, jr., is putting up such a stiff fight in the investigation into his moral character that it now looks as if the hearing will be protracted into tomorrow. The investigation committe of twelve ministers sat until after midnight last night hearing witnesses, and when the hearing adjourned it was stated that the case was a long way from being concluded.

At the evening session two handwriting experts from New York were questioned. They were called, it is reported, to identify hadwriting which appears in certain letters.

These letters, it is said, form the basis of the $5,000,000 libel suit which Bishop Cannon brought some months ago in this city against William Randolph Hearst, proprietor of the Hearst newspapers, in which the letters originally appeared. Bishop Cannon denies having written the letters.

A reporter for the New York Journal, Austin O'Malley, who wrote the news story in which these letters were embodied, which news story was carried in all the Hearst afternoon papers in the country, was a star witness before the committee twice during the day. He was examined at great length by the ministers preferring the charges against Bishop Cannon; but, it is said, his cross-examination was not so severe or rigorou as has been the case with other witnesses. In this cross-examination, so it is said, but one question was asked O'Malley.

"What is your religion?"

And when he answered he was greeted with a "hah!" and told to go.

How important O'Malley's testimony is in this case, and the nature of the charges themselves that are under investigation, is evidenced by the fact

Calvin Coolidge Says:

The problem of agriculture in recent years has seemed so much the disposition of surplus production that very little public thought has been given to soil exhaustion. Yet authentic reports tell us that each year about five and three-fourths millions more pounds of plant food are taken from the soil than are returned to it. That means a serious depletion of capital.

The immediate effect is the increase of acreage to maintain production. That increases the unit cost. When the harvest comes it is found the expense of raising the crop is so large that the profit is diminished.

A one-crop system is mostly responsible for this condition. With diversification and animal husbandry the problem can be partly solved. But investigation has also shown that a wise use of fertilizers increases the yield, reduces the cost of cultivation per unit and so increases the profit.

The farm ought to be primarily a self-sustaining home with its own food supply. In trying to make it so by diversification, by needful fertilization and a wiser financing the farm board is proposing a sound fundamental remedy for that part of agriculture entitled to public encouragement and support.

Crowd Applauds as Maxon Wins Acquittal in Slaying

Several Southerners Weep When Jury Frees Young Tennessecan, Son of Bishop, on Charge of Killing Fellow Lodger in New York.

New York, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—James Matthew Maxon, jr., of Chattanooga, Tenn., was acquitted today of the murder of David Paynter. A considerable crowd had remained to hear the verdict and applause broke out in the old courtroom when the foreman announced the acquittal.

Young Maxon, his face ashen, sprang to his feet and seized the hand of his attorney, Martin W. Littleton, pumping it vigorously.

His father, Episcopal Bishop Coadjutor of Tennessee, had returned to his side just a few minutes before the verdict was announced.

Among the crowd were many persons from the South, who crowded around Bishop Maxon and his son and clasped their hands joyfully. Some gave vent to their emotion in a flood of tears.

Then the liberated youth, confronted no longer by the prospect of possible long term incarceration, took leave of the court scene in which, for many hours, he had anxiously and hopefully awaited this moment.

He said he had not decided whether he would accompany his father back to Chattanooga or stay in New York and hunt a job.

The youth confided to a reporter that last summer, while he was out on bail, he got a newspaper job in St. Louis, but was "fired for being scooped."

Nearly all of the jurors favored acquittal from the start of the deliberations, one of their number said. A

Los Angeles Safely Moored In Cuba After Record Flight

Navy Officials Boast of Speed Mark of Airship Through Fair and Foul Weather With Heavy Load on 1,535-Mile Military Cruise.

(Associated Press.)

Having nosed through 24 hours of fair weather and foul, the Navy dirigible Los Angeles proudly rested at a mooring mast in Guantanamo, Cuba, last night, while Navy officials boasted of a speed record for airships.

"Yes, sir," they said, "1,535 miles in 24 hours and 5 minutes, an average speed of 63.7 miles an hour."

The 6-year-old, German-built ship cleared her mooring at Lakehurst, N. J., at 5:30 p. m., Wednesday and slowly settled to anchor at 5:33 p. m., tonight at Guantanamo. Officials of the Navy Aeronautics Bureau said it exceeded any airship speed record on their books.

"I am highly delighted with the speed of the Los Angeles," said Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics. "It is a notable achievement."

Heavy with a complement of 48 men—13 officers, a crew of 33, and two passengers, the Los Angeles got Away to a good start, sailing high through fair weather during most of the night and morning.

Off the tip of Florida at noon, however, the big ship ran into storms, circumventing thundershowers, and getting off her course. But all the engines worked fine, its commander reported to the Navy Department.

The Guantanamo stop marked completion of the first leg of a flight which will take the ship to Panamanian waters for participation in maneuvers of the United States fleet.

normal daily deposits of about $60,000," declared Mr. Baltz. "I think that expresses in a very tangible way the confidence felt in the stability of the institution by our patrons and by the public at large. While I am not prepared to say exactly how much was withdrawn during the day, inasmuch as the totals have not been compiled during the press of work, I know positively that the amount was not any greater than the amount withdrawn the previous day, and I don't think it reached that sum."

"We have met the demand for withdrawals from our own resources, and have not been forced to use any part of the amount advanced us either by other banking institutions or that advanced from the Treasury," he added.

Opening of the bank yesterday morning found approximately 300 men and women forming a calm, orderly line stretching from the doors on Eleventh street around along the F street block and part way up Twelfth street. In first place, standing at the door, was an old Negro woman who stationed herself there at 4 o'clock in the morning, after having sat in an automobile nearby for three hours previously.

Curious Crowd Watches.

Policemen patroled the streets and sidewalks constantly, and many persons milled about the bank corner, laughing and joking with those in line or merely curiously awaiting developments. A steady stream flowed in and out of the front doors, the number in line slightly increasing or slightly decreasing as the hours passed. Around the noon hour a high mark of about 350 in line was reached, but this number dwindled somewhat as the afternoon waned.

Shortly before 4 o'clock, the word was circulated along the line that a large sum of money was en route to the banking house. The front doors were thrown open to admit a lobby-full of patrons. The streets nearby were closed to traffic, and the largest crowd of the day eddied about the corner.

Down E street came a calvacade comprising a detatchment of motorcycle policemen, a large automobile bearing Secret Service men, an armored truck of the Treasury, another automobile of Secret Service agents, trailed by another motorcycle escort and a running squad of foot police. It swept by the line, circled the corner in a brief demonstration and then backed into the curbing.

Money Piled High on Table.

Out came armed custodians bearing boxes of bills of various denominations. A dozen uniformed policemen inside snapped to attention and formed a guard around a table where it was piled high in full view of a railing full of persons awaiting withdrawals.

At the moment the unloading of the money started, Joshua Evans, jr., president of the District National Bank, stepped upon the marble counter, silenced the buzz of conversation, and briefly addressed the crowd reiterating his statement of the previous day that he was a depositor in the Perpetual and that "my family not only has been depositing here for 20 to 25 years, but we shall continue to deposit here for years to come." He took the occasion to introduce another speaker, Miss Janet Richards, Washington lecturer.

Identifying herself as a 25-year depositer in the institution and member of a family with $20,000 on deposit there, she chided the crowd for doubting the stability of the concern, and lauded it as "one of the soundest in Washington."

Baltz Reassures Patrons.

Mr. Baltz then hopped to the counter, pointed to the stack of new Treasury money, and asserted: "There it is, waiting for you."

All through the day Mr. Evans, Francis G. Addison, jr., president of the Security Savings & Commercial Bank, and Lanier P. McLaughlin, president of the District Bankers Association, remained in the bank, calming the fears of those seeking withdraws, and reassuring others. Officials of other banks and various other interested persons stopped or telephoned to express their own belief in the soundness of the Perpetual.

Approximately $1,750,000 was on hand when the bank opened yesterday, it was announced. Of this amount $750,000 had been brought in early from the Riggs National Bank, $300,000 representing the amount which the Riggs the previous day had loaned but kept overnight in its vaults, and an additional $250,000. In early afternoon the Perpetual received $750,000 of its own money which had been on deposit in the District National Bank and the Federal-American National Bank.

Depositor Addresses Crowd.

At the time of this latter transfer Newbold Noyes climbed into a window niche at the bank and reassured the crowd, declaring that he had just deposited $25,000 on behalf of the afternoon newspaper he represented.

Mr. Baltz, as spokesman for the bank, also announced opening of new accounts with substantial amounts from John Joy Edson, prominent banker; Walter S. Pratt, a well-known business man; Isaac Gans, former president of the Chamber of Commerce; the Washington Savings Bank, John Korman, secretary-treasurer of the Taylor-Korman Oil Co., and the brokerage firm of Eastman, Dillon & Co., through its newly named manager, Jasper Dubose; the Mutual Insurance Agency, Inc., and the National Underwriters Mutual Insurance Co., among others.

Both the Building Associaiton Council and the District of Columbia, through William S. Quinter, as secretary, and the Washington Better Business Bureau, through Louis Rothschild, as director, added their public expressions of confidence in the Perpetual.

acting as an intermediary, or rather helping out in the negotiations. While there are still many rough spots to be ironed out the fact that the Democrats are willing to surrender the proposition for an appropriation to the Red Cross or to any appropriation for charity at all, and the representaticns that this charity appropriation is after all what the President is mostly against, there is confidence that a compromise will be reached.

Majority Leader Tilson, of the House, appears to be the worst stumbling block, but it is doubtful if he can continue to hold out by himself.

In the meantime, Senator Borah made public a rip-snorting letter which he sent to J. S. Reitenbaugh, a New York business man, who had taken Borah to task for threatening an extra session.

Borah Questions Delay.

He asked Mr. Reitenbaugh just what he had done to help solve the present situation, whether he had donated to the Red Cross. The real "disgrace" in the whole situation, Borah wrote, is that of all the vast wealth in this country the Red Cross has not long ago raised sufficient money to deal with conditions.

There are any number of men who could get together and subscribe $25,000,000 without their estates being hardly touched, he said.

WRECKED SYSTEM CHARGED TO MEYER

DENIAL PROMPTLY GIVEN

(Associated Press.)

Eugene Meyer, who has been nominated governor of the Federal Reserve Board, was charged yesterday by Representative Rainey with "completely and intentionally" wrecking the farm-loan system while a member of the Farm Loan Board.

The accusation was made before the Senate banking subcommittee considering the New York financier's nomination. It and other charges by the Illinois Democrat promptly were denied by Meyer.

Opposing confirmation Rainey said Meyer's "blundering" resulted in a depreciation of farm loan bank bonds of $100,000,000 within three months after he went on the farm Loan Board in 1927. He added the "evil body of wreckers" Meyer left behind him when he resigned in 1929 still was carrying on his policies.

Fifth Time on Stand.

On the witness stand the fifth time, Meyer explained all bonds were low in the summer of 1928, soon after he went on the board. He said constant attacks on the board and declines in land values were two factors contributing to the low farm loan bond values.

Rainey also charged Meyer, or the policies he favored, resulted in the indictment of Guy Houston, former president of the Chicago Joint Stock Land Bank, but that Houston had been cleared of charges of using the mails to defraud.

Meyer denied this also, saying he had not consulted with the Department of Justice on prosecution of officers of the land bank system. Rainey charged the entire system was "full of graft." He added he placed no blame on Secretary Mellon.

Charges Speech Franked.

"Mr. Mellon is intellectually honest," he added. "He is a genial old gentleman, but easily influenced and the easiest way to influence him is to assure him he is the greatest Secretary of the Treasury since Hamilton. He accepts the advice of flattering millionaires and the result is these influences result in this situation."

He also claimed the Farm Loan Board had induced a member of Congress to frank a speech made by an unnamed person and mail it to Illinois in an effort to defeat him (Rainey) at the last election.

Paul Bestor, farm-loan commissioner, who was in the room, was questioned about this, but said he knew nothing of it.

Wife Gets Blame In Alienation Suit

Willie Crutcher Testifies in $100,000 Case at Richmond.

Richmond, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Willie Crutcher told a jury in law and equity court here today that his wife alone alienated his affections and her jealousy of women to whom he paid slight attentions was the sole cause of their separation.

He testified in the $100,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Mrs. Nellie Rudd Crutcher against Cameron Dunlop and Mrs. Dallas Pettus, of Drakes Branch, and Miss Dorothy Pettus, of Richmond.

J. E. Crutcher, Mayor of Drakes Branch, who testified yesterday against his son, was recalled to the stand. Mrs. Crutcher also was on the stand for a while today. Other witnesses examined were Sam Lassiter, son-in-law of Mayor Crutcher, who told of an alleged offer by the mayor to settle the alienation case if given $3,000. O. B. Locke, town sergeant of Drakes Branch, and Mrs. H. B. Burton were other witnesses examined. Indications tonight were that the case would continue for several days longer.

Byrd's Home Town To Build Airport

Tribute Planned for Flier and Explorer by Citizens of Winchester.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Feb. 5.—A tribute to Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd, naval flier and explorer, is proposed by hometown citizens in the form of a flying field in the southeastern suburbs of the city.

Application has been made to the State Corporation Commission for a charter by the Admiral Byrd Airport, Inc., and it was stated today that as soon as legal authority is vested the corporation will proceed with the acquisition of land. Already 65 acres, known as the Bowles Flying Field, is under control of those interested in the project, and it was indicated that several hundred additional acres are available for the memorial.

Duration of the corporation is to be unlimited. Officers are: C. H. Schutte, president; John H. Rosenberger, vice president; Lawrence C. Hollis, secretary-treasurer, and they with Harry F. Byrd and W. Nelson Page constitute the board of directors.

SMITH FACES COURT FIGHT AS POWER HEAD

sell and Chief Accountant King of the commission.

Democrats and Independent Republicans resented this action. The Senate voted to reconsider, but President Hoover refused to return the nominations. Wednesday Mr. Garsaud and Mr. Draper were confirmed again; but by a vote of 40 to 33, the Senate withheld approval of Mr. Smith.

The resolution to institute a court test was introduced by Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, a leader in the fight against the three.

It provides for special counsel to act with the District Attorney, and empowers the former to proceed on his own initiative if the District Attorney refuses to carry out the Senate's mandate.

This was considered a possibility in view of the fact that Attorney General Mitchell issued an opinion holding the Senate, having once confirmed the three commissioners, was powerless to take further action.

Early in the day Mr. Smith issued a statement saying he was pleased that the recall issue had been focused upon himself as it would enable four of the five commissioners to function without worry over possible consequences.

NYE MEN ACCUSED OF DAVIS CASE BIAS

Pennsylvania Judge Tells Committee Two Made One-Sided Inquiry.

MANY SUPPORT SENATOR

(Associated Press.)

Two agents of the Senate campaign funds investigating committee were accused by a Pennsylvania judge yesterday of making a one-sided inquiry into the nomination and election of Senator Davis.

Judge J. Frank Graff, of the Armstrong County Common Pleas Court, told the committee the agents sought him out recently at Pittsburgh and told him they were "anxious to secure testimony against Senator Davis."

"I drew the conclusion from the questions they asked me," Graff said, "that they wanted information from me to counteract testimony of a certain witness who already has appeared."

He named the witness as Judge James B. Drew, of Pittsburgh, who had testified the nomination of Davis, now a senator, was a "foregone conclusion."

Identifies Agent.

Graff was defeated by Drew in the 1930 primary for the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

Asked to identify the agents, Graff pointed to a man sitting near Chairman Nye at the committee table and said he was one of them. Nye named the agent as E. M. Daniels. The other's name was given as Baldwin.

Nye asked Graff if the agents "played anything but parts of gentlemen in their contact with you?"

"No," replied Graff, "they did not."

"Were they striving to get you to give testimony that was false or prejudiced?"

Many Back Davis.

"They did not try to get me to give false testimony, no," replied Graff. He did not answer the rest of the question.

Nye then dismissed the witness.

A score of witnesses from Pennsylvania testified as to Davis' popularity in his home State and asserted expenditure of any large amount of money for his campaign was unnecessary.

The committee is investigating the campaign expenditures of Davis, former Secretary of Labor.

Entire Family of Six Wiped Out by Blaze

Welch, W. Va., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—An entire family of six today had been wiped out by fire.

Mrs. Clarence Bennett, 23, died in a hospital last night, the sixth victim of a fire that destroyed her home at Asco, near here, last Friday. Her husband and two sons, Charles, 4, and Junior, 6, were burned to death as they slept. Two daughters, Lillian, 7, and a baby girl, died the following day.

Marines Will Quit Nicaragua in 1932

Troops to Be Withdrawn After Year's Elections, Stimson Decides.

(Associated Press.)

The administration still plans to withdraw American Marines from Nicaragua as soon as possible after the 1932 elections in that country.

This was made known yesterday at the conclusion of a series of conferences, lasting about a week, between Secretary Stimson, Matthew E. Hanna, American Minister to Nicaragua; Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, who supervised the 1928 elections, and State Department experts on Latin-America. Whether withdrawal of the Marines will be gradual or all at once has not been determined.

The Secretary was particularly interested in finances with a view to advising the Nicaraguan government on the dispcsition of a $1,000,000 fund which the National Bank of Nicaragua, with headquarters in New York, will loan to the Nicaraguan government.

Kaiser Unopposed In Radio Speech

State Department Replies to Inquiries That It Is Not Interested.

Former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany can talk to his heart's content on the radio, so far as the State Department is concerned.

This, in effect, was that department's answer yesterday to reports that it had banned an international broadcast by the one-time war lord.

When the State Department was sounded out on the question of whether it would approve or disapprove the kaiser's speech being broadcast to this country, it simply replied that it was "not interested."

BUTLER EXCULPATED IN WILLIAMS AFFAIR

OFFICER SCORES NAVY

solini of Italy a hit-and-run driver would not be made public until the trial on February 16, four persons who attended that San Diego party were explaining Gen. Butler's action against Col. Williams.

Gen. Butler, they said, really was ordered to prefer charges against Col. Williams by his superior officer, Rear Admiral A. H. Robertson. Gen. Butler himself, they said, was reluctant to prefer the charges, but, having been ordered to do so by a superior, he could only obey.

This inside story of the celebrated incident, according to the Associated Press, was volunteered by Mr. and Mrs. C. S. A. Henry and Mr. and Mrs. Emmett R. Tatnall, who live in suburbs of Philadelphia. They said the story had been told them by Admiral Robertson himself.

Not long after he had been court-martialed, Col. Williams drove his automobile into San Francisco Bay and was drowned.

When the charges and specifications against Gen. Butler in connection with the Mussolini incident were served two days ago, Maj. Henry Leonard, U. S. M. C., counsel for the Quantico commandant, notified the Navy Department he did not care whether the charges were made public or not. In other words, he placed the question of their publication squarely up to the Navy Department.

Yesterday the Navy Department issued this statement:

"In response to queries this morning as to whether the Navy Department would make public the charges and specifications in the case of the general court-martial of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, U. S. Marine Corps, Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams stated:

"'The Navy Department will follow the usual procedure. In the regular courses of events, the charges and specifications are made public when the accused is arraigned in open session before the court-martial sitting in his case.'"

Counsel Still to Be Chosen.

Thus far, the identity of the "prominent attorney" who will help Maj. Leonard defend Gen. Butler has not been revealed. As has been explained, John W. Davis has notified Gen. Butler the press of other business will prevent him from taking the case.

Representative James M. Beck (Republican), of Pensylvania, former solicitor general of the United States, who had been mentioned in the speculation as to a chief counsel, said he had not been asked to serve. He added that he did not think it would be proper for him to serve, even if he were asked.

Among others who have been mentioned is Clarence Darrow, who was counsel in the Scopes trial and the Leopold and Loeb case.

At the Philadelphia Navy Yard Rear Admiral L. A. Bostwick, the commandant, is making the physical preparations for Gen. Butler's trial. A large gathering of reporters and spectators is anticipated, and for that reason the trial probably will be held in the ballroom instead of in a smaller room in which naval courts usually sit.

Discuss Vanderbilt Tale.

Yesterday Gen. Butler and Maj. Leonard had a lengthy conference at Quantico and discussed among other things the Associated Press story in The Post to the effect that Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., had said Gen. Butler had quoted him "inaccurately."

Vanderbilt is generally credited with having told Gen. Butler a story about Mussolini running down a child.

At the State Department it was said the only communication that had been received from Vanderbilt was a letter in which the young writer offered to tell what he knew about the Mussolini incident. It is not likely the department will call on him for details.

U. S. Gunboat, Attacked, Silences Chinese Firing

(Associated Press.)

The gunboat Oahu has been fired on by Chinese bandits along the Yangtze River.

The Navy Department is informed from the Asiatic fleet that the vessel was fired on Wednesday by "one communist muzzle loader," 117 miles above Hankow. The firing was silenced with 22 rounds of 3-inch shells and machine guns. No casualties were reported.

DROUGHT MAY CAUSE SHORTAGE OF WHEAT

Condition Would Cause More Harm Than Surplus, Legge Asserts.

WEEK DRYEST RECORDED

(Associated Press.)

If the drought continues, and it has shown no signs of ending, there may be a shortage of wheat instead of the usual surplus that has been the chief source of the farmer's woes.

Chairman Legge, of the Farm Board made this prediction yesterday, but added the drought would do more harm than the surplus.

Meanwhile, the Department of Agriculture said the week which closed Wednesday was the dryest and warmest on record for this season, and that January as a whole had been remarkably warm and dry.

The lack of moisture, particularly in the subsoil, is very acute, the department announced, especially in the Mississippi Valley and the territory extending eastward over the Ohio and Potomac drainage systems.

Mr. Legge said a contributing factor in the possible wheat shortage was the fact that last year's carryover was but 40 per cent of the consumption normal. The Farm Board had no figures on how rapidly the carry-over is being exhausted.

He described conditions in the main as "serious" and said in the Far West, where the wheat apparently is in the best condition, a lack of snowfall in the mountains was proving a threat. He added irrigation districts dependent upon snows in the mountains may be seriously affected.

that the witness was on the stand under direct examination for five hours. He was spirited into the Mount Vernon Place Church, where the hearing is being held, and twice he was spirited out of the building without any reporter seeing him.

The handwriting experts had a rough time of it at the hands of Bishop Cannon, who amazes even his opponents with his resources, with his mental stamina and his strength as the case proceeds. The bishop seemed to know a lot about handwriting experts, and these experts, one named Farrell, the richt-hand man of the celebrated David Carvalho, met their match in the ecclesiastic.

When they came from the church they did look a bit ruffled, but were still self possessed.

"What did you testify to?" the reporter shot at him when he the sidewalk on a run.

"Testify? I didn't testify to anything," he shot back. "I went in there to have my eyes looked at."

The little fat hand-writing expert who accompanied him, and who was carrying a big portfolio full of specimens and examples of all sorts of chirography in one hand an immense envelope full of eloquent evidence of one kind and another in the other, never stopped running long enough to aswer a sigle questio.

memorandum and when Senator Blaine said it did not, he added:

"That's the note that protects me."

Mr. Trotter's memorandum, Mr. Bartlett testified, said that when he was called into Mr. New's office, Mr. Kulp's attorney was with the Postmaster General.

Letters Implicate Good.

Senator Blaine introduced several letters into the record purporting to show that former Secretary of War Good was active in negotiating the new lease for the St. Paul station.

Mr. Bartlett said he did not charge any one with forgery in connection with his and other signatures made out by other officials, because they were on orders from Mr. New.

Mr. Bartlett said there was "no question" the Government would be "better off" to build its own postal buildings than to lease them in places where it is known they will continue to be needed.

Postmaster at St. Paul Says He Was Exonerated

St. Paul, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Replying to charges made in Congress today by Representative Melvin J. Maas, Postmaster Charles J. Moos today declared he had been exonerated of any wrong doing by a Federal grand jury and by the Postoffice Department at Washington.

The grand jury report, which the postmaster cited, was returned about two years ago, after an investigation into the commercial station leases. The postmaster also said that demotions cited by Representative Maas came "as a result of a national survey."

Baltimore Urges Economy in Water

Consumers Entreated by Acting Mayor to Save Gallon Daily.

Baltimore, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—"Save a gallon of water a day" was urged as a slogan for Baltimore consumers today by acting Mayor James J. O'Meara, while a survey continued to determine the extent to which the municipal supply has been affected by the long-continued drought.

A report on the water situation is being prepared by Dr. John H. Gregory, of Johns Hopkins University. Because of the reduced flow of the Gunpowder River, attributed to the drought, the city's stored reserve is being depleted at the rate of 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 gallons a day, city officials said.

Mr. O'Meara pointed out that if everybody reduced his personal consumption by as little as a gallon a day some 600,000 gallons would be saved. A number of smaller Maryland cities, including Cumberland, Frederick and Annapolis, have restricted water consumption for months, but Baltimore until recently has been unaffected.

HOOVER PROCLAIMS 5 TARIFF CHANGES

Smoot-Hawley Act Rates Reduced on Four Items; One Is Increased.

LEATHER DUTY LOWERED

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday proclaimed five changes in the Smoot-Hawley tariff act rates.

He approved the first seven recommendations made to him by the new Tariff Commission. Four called for rate reductions on wood flour, pigskin leather used in making bags and sporting goods, straw hats and maple sugar. The fifth sanctioned an increase in rates on woven wire fencing and netting. Rates on ultramarine blue and small rugs remain unchanged.

Chairman Fletcher, of the Tariff Commission, announced the President's action. He said the seven reports ordered by the Senate during the tariff battle of last year, with the resultant recommendations had been sent the White House today, and that without delay the President had approved all.

The changes follow:

Wood flour, which is finely ground wood, was lowered from 33 1-3 per cent ad valorem to 25 per cent. This represents a reduction from both the 1930 and 1922 tariff acts, the former rate having been carried in both.

Pigskin leather, which was duty free prior to 1930, was cut from 25 per cent to 15 per cent. Pigskin used for making shoes, which is taxed 10 per cent, was unaffected by the change.

Woven wire fencing and netting galvanized before weaving was increased from 45 per cent ad valorem to 50 per cent, and fencing and netting galvanized after weaving, to 60 per cent. The rates for both were the same prior to today's change.

Straw hats valued at $9.50 or less per dozen were cut from $4 a dozen and 60 per cent to $3 a dozen and 50 per cent. In 1926 the old Tariff Commission investigated straw hats of this type, and the duty was increased from 60 per cent to 88 per cent ad valorem.

SENATE TAKES ACTION ON DISABILITY PAY men who never saw France during the war, but now are able to show they are entitled to compensation for diseases due to their service in the army.

"While these men are drawing large salaries from the same bureau that has declared them partially disabled to an extent justifying the payment by the Government of a good sized amount as compensation, there are other veterans who actually saw service in France and who suffered genuine war injuries who are not being so treated.

"I wonder how these men would like to get the salaries, or even the compensation, these men are drawing. What does the poor enlisted man, whose compensation is about $50 a month, think about this situation?"

Patrick's Service Proper.

Employment of Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, retired, chairman of the District Public Utilities Commission, was questioned by Senator Joseph Robinson (Democrat), Arkansas, but it was explained the retirement pay of regular pay of regular army officers is regarded as a sort of accrued annuity, and under the fuling of the Attorney General Gen. Patrick's service with the utilities commission is proper.

Senator George (Democrat), Georgia, questioned the amendment proposed by Senator Reed. It might work to the harm of retired officers who are employed outside the government service, Senator George said, said, would have to be dealt with

The entire question, Senator Reed later, but in the meantime he wanted to deal with the situation in the Veterans' Bureau immediately.

He said he meant no reflection on "these individuals who are doing the human thing, and I am finding fault with the system.

Names Batch Drawing Stipend.

Among those he named were:

Winthrop C. Ames, medical director, salary, $8,000; compensation, $150 a month.

James W. Donnelly, medical supervisor, $5,600 salary, and $125 a month compensation.

Thomas C. Foster, consultant, salary, $5,200; compensation, $150.

George Coleman Skinner, chief of a Veterans' Bureau division, salary, $6,500, and compensation $150.

There were several outside the District named, and among them were: Herbert E. Whitledge, Kentucky, medical officer; salary, $6,500; compensation, $150. Robert P. Smith, Montana, physician; salary, $5,000, and compensation, $187.50. Justus Marshall Wheate, California, physician; $5,200 and $240.62. William James Blake, regional manager in Massachusetts, $5,600 and $115; Dr. John C. Carling, California, $5,200 and $150; Wilfred Ernest Chambers, medical officer, Missouri, $6,500 and $206.25; B. S. Compton, Kentucky, clinical director, $5,00 and $125.

Dr. William T. Doherty, Kansas, $5,000 and $125; Frank T. Duffy, regional manager, Illinois, $5,600 and $150; Dr. Miles Jordan Duncan, California, $5,007 and $150; Dr. Claude C. Keeler, Minnesota, $5,200 and $150; Ignatz David Loewy, clinical director, Arizona, $6,000 and $206.25; Dr. Clayton Allen Patterson, California, regional dental officer, $5,157 and $165; Carlin C. Phillips, New York, medical member, $5,307 and $187.50; Dr. Richard A. Roach, California, $5,007 and $150; Dr. Frank Roberts Sedeeley, Minnesota, chief surgical service, $5,600 and $150.

Would Make $20 Minimum.

Under the proposal outlined by Gen. Hines to the finance committee, compensation of veterans in no case would be reduced to less than $20 a month.

"We are faced," Gen. Hines said, "with the payment of disability allowances for nonservice cases, and we shouldn't provide an incentive to men to lose their desire to carry on.

Meanwhile the question of veterans' erilef legislation remained a question. The House ways and means committee concluded hearings on the subject. John Hartnett, national commander of the Army and Navy Union, disapproved of Secretary Mellon's opposition to various pending bills.

Several members of teh House took occasion to go before the committee and say their say, that their constituents back home would know of their anxiety for the welfare of the veterans. Among these was Representative Paul Kvale (Farmer-Laborite), Minnesota. Republican leaders said the door had not been shut to relief legislation.

COUNCIL PETITIONED TO ERECT BUILDING

Alexandria Association Is Impatient on Plans for New High School.

WATER SYSTEM SCORED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The City Council yesterday received a petition from the Alexandria High School Parent-Teacher Association, signed by F. Clinto Knight, president, and C. C. Welch, secretary, asking that the council speed up plans for a new high school to relieve congested conditions and provide needed equipment so that Alexandria would "have the best, not the worst, in the State."

Councilman Fannon moved that the communication be received and given due consideration, but Mayor Pierce stated he believed more definite action than this should be taken at this time, since it is such a vital question, and he felt the council should get in touch with the association in regard to submitting some plan for financing the proposition.

Councilman Ticer stated the proposed new building will cost $325,000, and the interest on this amount alone, which would have to be raised by a bond issue, would be $14,625 a year; the operating expenses of the new school would mean an additional $25,000 a year, or a grand total of $48,375, and such an expenditure for the school would mean an increase in the tax rate of from 22 to 30 cents on the $100. I was finally decided to accept this communication and the council would go more fully into it with the school board.

A committee of citizens, headed by Charles R. Hooff, of the newly annexed territory from Fairfax County, a part of Seminary Hill, appeared before the council regarding the last of water facilities in that section, and the entire lack of fire protection now owing to the dry wells. Mr. Hooff said the Alexandria Water Co. mains run to the Fruit Growers Express on the Duke street side and to Ivy Hill Cemetery on King street road, approximately a mile from the part of the city they are asking relief for, and that before the territory was annexed the residents had taken the matter up with the water company. They had been informed it would cost $60,000 and the company wanted 10 per cent on its investment; the entire proposition would have meant too much of a responsibility for a long time and an unfair part of the expense placed upon the people.

He stated that at a recent fire on the Hill, the house burned while the firemen stood around, as there was no water to fight it, and even the electric current was cut off at the time, and that those who had water in nearby Wells were not able to draw it. He stated the residents of that section are asking consideration, particularly in view of the increased taxation, and also that prior to coming within the city limits that part of the county was served by Lee-Jack High School, which was the most convenient, and now they have to pay a nominal tuition.

Councilman Fannon offered a resolution that every consideration be given these newly acquired residents and that immediate attention be given to an effort to get water mains run to that section, which was adopted.

The city manager presented the report for 1930, showing total receipts of $602,592, the estimated budget having been $629,373; receipts not in the budget, such as the sale of the city gas works, temporary loans and cash balance of the year previous, $1,649,862; the grand total of all disbursements, $1,622,850.18, and the balance of $26,012.39.

The commissioner of revenue's books show taxes amounting to $487,355, while the amount collected was $389,751, with $97,593 delinquent, and back taxes in the amount of $79,290 collected. Mayor Pierce asked that the city collector report at the next council meeting the amount still due the city on gas bills.

A communication was received from the Parent-Teacher Association of Parker-Gray School, for Negroes, relative to constructing a sidewalk in that block, stating the only paving is a path in front of the school building, which was constructed at the expense of that association. Alexandria is the only city of its size in the State that does not have a high school for its Negro pupils, it was claimed.

Councilman Herbert moved an investigation be made as to placing a sidewalk and also that the matter of conditions in this school be taken up with the school board.

A request from E. E. Lawler, jr., secretary to the Alexandria Fire Department, for permission to stage a carnival in North Washington street in May to raise funds toward entertaining the State Firemen's Convention in this city in 1932, and that council remit the tax on such a show, was granted.

A communication from E. A. Sweeley that council permit the use of Armory Hall for basket ball games was received, and it was agreed that Mr. Sweeley be advised that the arory is used by the Alexandria Light Infantry on Monday nights, the American Legion on Tuesdays, and that the Alexandria High School Team does not pay. Games era without charge, and a small fee is charged for commercial games to defray expense of janitor service, heat and light.

A request was granted Forest F. Matteson, manager of B. Wheatley, to permit a free city license for the ambulance owned and operated by that company for the benefit of the Alexandria Hospital.

Councilman Fannon then offered a resolution that all automobile and truck city licenses be omitted after January 1, 1932, and council ruled it was not prepared to take action on the question at this time, and was informed by Councilman Fannon that he was not asking immediate action, but wanted the matter placed on record and the budget for the coming year worked on with that matter in view.

Councilman Fannon moved that a communication from Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the chamber of comerce, regarding the bridges over Four-Mile Run, be received and given consideration and Mr. Hollenga advised accordingly.

A request for E. K. Fitzpatrick, of Braddock, regarding a duplication in his tax bill, was given to the city collector for adjustment.

The following communications from the zoning and planning commission, J. U. Reardon, secretary, were received: E. C. Evans, permit to erect shop in 700 block of King street, denied; Alexandria Iron Works, repairs and construction work, granted; request of Miss Margaret Finnell, to establish a beauty parlor at 116 South Lee street, granted.

Request of J. Randall Caton for his client, Mrs. Gertrude Doyle, for permit to erect filling station on her property at Hume station, referred to the zoning and planning commission.

A resolution was received from the Alexandria, Fairfax and Arlington Real Estate Board asking that council join with that body and the Alexandria Chamber of Comerce protesting any increase in the water rates for the city, when that matter comes before the State Corporation Commission.

A petition from Chauncey Brothers for permission to erect an addition to their building in Market alley, was considered and denied on account of wooden construction.

PLAN TO DROP CAR LINE IS PROTESTED

City Council at Alexandria Adopts Resolution Upon Proposal.

URGES TRACKAGE RIGHT

At the close of the regular meeting of the Alexandria city council last night, an informal meeting was held to discuss the proposed abandonment by R. L. May of operation of the trolley line between Alexandria and Washington. It was then decided to draft a resolution stating the position of the council in the matter, making it clear that the body would vigorously protest any action looking to the discontinuance of the line, and would take steps, if necessary, to oppose it before the utilities bodies, at the proper time. The resolution follows:

Whereas, it has come to the attention of the city council that the Federal Government will require the removal of the tracks of the Washington, Alexandria and Mount Vernon Railway from certain streets in the City of Washington and,

Need Is Asserted.

Whereas, It is proposed to abandon the operation of the railway line now running between Alexandria and Washington, D. C., because, as the council is informed, a portion of the track will be required by the Federal authorities to be replaced, and

Whereas, It is the sense and contention of the city council that the abandonment of the said railway would greatly affect and injure the growth and progress of our city and result in great loss and damage to our citizens, and

Whereas, In the opinion of the council any attempt to force said railway line out of the City of Washington, or any move on the part of its owner to abandon the operation of said railway line should be strongly and vigorously protested and resisted, Protest Proposal.

Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved by the city council of Alexandria, Va.:

First, that we protest any action intended to force the operation of the Washington, Alexandria & Mount Vernon Railway out of Washington City, and urge that every effort be made to provide adequate and convenient right-of-way and terminals for the said railway within the said city.

Second, that we oppose any attempt on the part of the operator or operators of said railway seeking official aproval for its abandonment.

Third, that we urgently appeal to the citizens and organizations in our community to join with the city council in its efforts to insure continued operation of said railway line, the loss of which would so greatly injure our city and its people.

Woman Wounded As Man Kills Self

Norfolk Merchant Chases Business Rival From Her Store.

Norfolk, Va., Feb 5 (A.P.).—George Rousso, middle-aged merchant, shot himself through the head and died almost instantly this afternoon after chasing Mrs. May Galvin, aged about 40, out of her store and shooting her through the arm as she ran down the street.

Detectives who investigated the affair said Mrs. Galvin told them Rousso entered her store and started an argument about business, indicating that he was jealous of her success.

Then he drew a pistol, she was quoted as saying, and chased her down the street. He fired and the bullet penetrated her left arm. She turned in time to see him place the pistol against his own head and pull the trigger.

RED CROSS MONEY READY IN FAIRFAX

Requisition Papers Arrive for Food and Supplies to Be Given Needy.

IS IN DROUGHT AREA

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

As Fairfax County is listed by the Red Cross as drought-stricken and entitled to relief from the drought relief funds now being raised, the Fairfax County Chapter of the Red Cross has received the requisition blanks from the national headquarters which must be filled out to obtain food and supplies for victims of drought and unemployment.

The national headquarters have made such requirements which make it necessary that all of the emergency relief must be handled through the office of the county superintendent of public welfare, Mrs. Louise S. Manghum. The superintendent is required to certify the circumstances of each claim. The Red Cross Chapter is endeavoring to make an accurate survey in order to ascertain how many families are in actual need. They also wish to know the number in the family and their ages and other facts. These records will be turned over to Mrs. Manghum for investigation and relief.

The relief is available immediately for food and other necessary supplies in any amount actually needed. No money will be given directly to the needy families, but the relief will be in the form of orders from the national headquarters to local merchants. The local Red Cross committee has issued an appeal asking cooperation of all citizens of Fairfax County. Any one knowing of any person or family in need should communicate with either the superintendent of public welfare or Mrs. Fannie Lou Seamons, county health nurse at Fairfax, or with the Red Cross branch.

During the absence from the county of Mrs. Russell A. Lynn, of Herndon, county chairman, Mrs. George R. Bready, of Herndon, will act as county chairman as well as chairman of the Herndon branch. Mrs. William R. Cleveland, of Seminary, is county secretary, and Mrs. E. D. Vosbury, of Merrifield, is county treasurer. Mrs. U. S. Walters, of McLean, is chairman at McLean; Mrs. John Warnock Eckols, at Vienna; Mrs. D. F. Hannah, at Annandale; Edward C. Gibbs, at Mount Vernon; Mrs. J. B. Davis, at Burke; W. H. Richards, at Clifton, and Mrs. R. B. Nickell, at Floris.

As none of the drought relief funds from national headquarters can be used for medical care or medicine, the county chapter will endeavor to raise funds to meet such emergency expenses locally.

More than $800 has been subscribed so far toward Fairfax County's quota of $1,300 of the national relief fund, according to the report of Mrs. E. D. Vosbury, chairman of the drive committee. There has been a great deal of criticism because many Fairfax County citizens who work in Washington are required to make their contributions to the Washington Community Chest although the Washington Chest will not take care of any of the needs of the suburban Maryland and Virginia.

The Rachael Walker Circle of Kings Daughters will hold their February meeting this evening at the home of Mrs. Viola Ayres at Gum Springs.

The George Transportation Co. and the Columbia Gas Construciton Co. were charged with operating trucks in Fairfax County without proper tags. They were hauling the 20-inch pipe that is being used by the Virginia Gas Transmission Co. in laying the mains across the northern end of Fairfax County, from the railroad in Herndon to the various points of construction.

County Policeman Arthur W. Mills stopped two trucks of the George company and five of the Columbia company. The officers of both companies appeared before Justice of the Peace George Williams at Herndon. They were fined $10 and costs on each truck and were required to furnish bonds to purchase Virginia licenses.

Estler M. Palmer, president, and Robert D. Graham, secretary, of the Fairfax County Fair Association, attended the meeting of the State Horse Show Association in Alexandria, September 9, 10, 11 and 12 were fixed as the dates for the county fair and horse show. The main events of the horse show will be held on September 10 and 11. The meeting of the executive committee was held in the office of Secretary Graham at Fairfax and preliminary plans for the eighteenth annual fair were discussed.

Miss Bessie Hodsden, State poultry specialist, is in Fairfax County today to make the final scoring in the county-wide poultry contest, which has been in progress for several months. It is expected the winners will be announced soon.

COUNTY FEDERATION PLANS HEALTH BODY

Montgomery Officials Asked to Approve Proposal Group Outlined.

SUBMIT REPORT MONDAY

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Montgomery County will have a board of health if the recommendations of the Montgomery County Civic Federation committee on sanitation and public health, which will be submitted in a report to the federation at its meeting Monday night, are approved. The report was submitted to county officials and interested citizens yesterday for study.

The plan would provide a county health department without appreciable increase in the county budget. Most of the members of the board would be county officials who would receive no additional compensation. Other members would receive $10 for each meeting with a maximum of $50 a year for each member.

The board would consist of the president of the Montgomery County Commissioners, the superintendent of schools, the president of the Medical Society of Montgomery County, the head of the Montgomery County Farm Bureau, the State's attorney, one sanitary engineer representing the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, two practicing physicians and one veterinarian. The members would be appointed for terms of two years, or the term of their official position. Provision is made for removal for cause, on action of the State Board of Health.

The proposed act gives the board of health power to enter public and private premises where there is reasonable cause to believe that conditions endangering health are present. The board would be authorized to call upon the police and courts to enforce its decrees.

The salary of the health officer would be increased to $4,000 a year, the county to pay that portion which is not provided for by the State Department of Health. The report was submitted by Ralph Lee, chairman of the committee.

Montgomery County is responding freely to the call of the local Red Cross Chapter in its effort to raise the county quota of $3,600 for the Nation-wide drought relief fund of $10,000,000, it was announced yesterday by F. Barnard Walsh, chairman of the general committee.

In many instances the county residents had checks made out and waiting when solicitors arrived at their homes. In most of the county precincts, the collectors are reporting that they are rapidly reaching their goal.

The residents of the county are especially urged to make the county prominent on the honor roll, for it was in Montgomery County that Clara Barton, founder of the Red Cross lived, Mr. Welsh said. Optimistic reports from the chairman of the various districts, however, must not be allowed to permit a slackening in the intensity of the campaign for the goal, Mr. Welsh warned.

A card party for the benefit of Gaithersburg-Washington Grove Volunteer Fire Department will be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the firehouse at Gaithersburg, Msr. Carroll Walker, chairman of the committee in charge, announced yesterday. The card party is planned to raise funds for improvements in the depatment equipment.

Other members of the committee are Mrs. Merle T. Jacobs, Gaithersburg; Mrs. Joseph Brake, Washington Grove; Mrs. Elgie Riggs, Laytonsville; Mrs. Arthur Bell, Darnestown; Miss Evelyn Darby, Dawsonville; Mrs. Paul Wire, Clarksburg; Mrs. Ralph Walker, Damascus; Miss Maude Broome, Rockville; Miss Carrie Browning, Germantown, and Mrs. Henson Cashell, Redland. These members of the committee will sell tickets for the affair.

The Eastern Star of Gaithersburg will hold a birthday party tonight in Masonic Hall at Gaithersburg, at 8 o'clock. Philathea Class of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church will present the play, "How the Story Grew."

Deets Warfield, of Claggettsville and Mount Airy, was elected president of the Montgomery County Automobile Dealers Association, at a meting held Wednesday night in the Montgomery Country Club, Rockville. Other officers elected were Wade Imirie, Bethesda, vice president; Donald DeLashmutt, Rockville, secretary; Bradley Woodfield, Damascus, treasurer.

Edgar Reed, chairman of the legislation committee, reported that several changes in the motor vehicle law which had been proposed by the association will be presented to the General Assembly by the county delegation.

Dr. Dexter Bullard, Rockville physician, and Richard F. Green, cashier of the Kensington branch, have been elected directors of the Farmers' Banking & Trust Co. to fill vacancies caused by death. State Senator Robert G. Hilton is president of the bank.

For the first time in its career, it will be used as a military adjunct of the fleet for long range scouting and reconnaisance work.

It is under the command of Lieut. Comdr. V. A. Clarke.

U. S. S. Arkansas, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—The United States Scouting Fleet, en route to Panama for the forthcoming Navy war game, continued today through pleasant tropical weather. The fighting vessels separated last night into two sections 50 miles apart and this morning engaged in a mimic battle with the major vessels of the fleet. Long range gun duels and a simulated torpedo attack provided a forerunner of battles to be "fought" with the entire fleet during the latter part of the concentration at Panama.

mutual agreement not to divulge what went on behind the jury room doors prevented reporters from getting further details.

Paynter was killed last Good Friday in a rooming house brawl, beaten to death with a chair which Maxon was alleged to have wielded.

The prosecutor did not mention the boy's father by name, but asked the jury not to be swayed by sympathy for another.

Mr. Littleton attacked the testimony of Samuel Ecclesine, a lodger at the rooming house, who, he said, was the most important witness for the State. He also questioned the motives of "Ma" Hickey, the landlady, saying she planned a damage suit against his client and was thus interested in the outcome of the trial.

BETHLEHEM BUYS PITTSBURGH FIRM

McClintic-Marshall Co. Taken Over for $20,000,000 to Produce Beams.

DEAL EFFECTIVE AT ONCE

New York, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—The steel empire ruled by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation has extended its boundaries to include the McClintic-Marshall Construction Co., of Pittsburgh, one of the largest manufacturers of structural steel.

The acquisition of this 30-year-old company, controlled by the Mellon interests, of Pittsburgh, was formally announced today and constitutes one of the most important consolidations in the steel industry since the Eaton group, of Cleveland, formed the Republic Steel Corporation a year ago as the third largest unit in the industry.

McClintic-Marshall is a small catch, in comparison to Youngstown, but it strengthens a weak link in the Bethlehem chain. Its eight plants throughout the country will increase Bethlehem's capacity for making structural beams for bridges, skyscrapers and other similar projects by 700,000 tons a year. Bethlehem's present structural steel capacity is relatively small.

Grace Announces Deal.

Under the terms of the deal announced today by E. G. Grace, president of Bethlehem, the corporation will pay approximately $20,000,000 for its latest prize, in stock and notes.

The owners of McClintic-Marshall will receive 240,000 shares of Bethlehem common stock, having a current market value of approximately $12,000,000. These shares now are held in Bethlehem's treasury. In addition, they will receive $8,200,000 serial notes carrying 4½ per cent interest. They will be paid off in 10 equal installments annually, commencing January 1, 1932. Bethlehem also has agreed to assume all the liabilities of the Pittsburgh company, the largest item of which consists of $12,000,000 bonds outstanding.

Bethlehem is expected to take over the properties early next week. Four of the plants are in the Pittsburgh district, being located at, or near, Leetsdale, Carnegie, Pottstown and Rankin. Other plants are operated at San Francisco and Los Angeles, Calif.; Chicago and Buffalo, N. Y.

Blakeley to Head Company.

C. H. Blakeley, vice president of Bethlehem, will become the president of the new subsidiary. C. D. Marshall, one of the founders of McClintic-Marshall, is expected to be added to the Bethlehem board.

It is reported in the industry that Bethlehem also may acquire several small structural steel concerns, although the rumors lack confirmation. The concerns mentioned in the reports are Hay Foundry & Iron Co., Bethlehem Fabricators, Levering & Carrigues and the Harris Structural Steel Co.

Atterbury Lauds President Hoover

Pennsylvania Rail Magnate Oppose Paying Cash to All Veterans.

Philadelphia, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—President W. W. Atterbury, of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co., who returned today from a month's trip to the Pacific Coast, said that he found that the people generally have at heart "a deep admiration" for President Hoover "for all that he has been endeavoring to do in the way of improving the trade and business conditions of the Nation."

"The situation all through the West, so far as business is concerned," said the railroad president, "seemed not materially different from that prevailing elsewhere, although if any comparison is to be drawn I should say that conditions in the Pacific Northwest were more nearly normal. I believe we are near the bottom," he added, on business in general.

Mr. Atterbury said he was not in favor of the paying off of the entire soldiers' bonus at this time, but that something should be devised to take care of all service men clearly in need.

REFORMERS PATROL PARISIAN HIGHWAYS

Self-Appointed Raiders Say They Seek to Save Good Name of City.

WARNING IS GIVEN FIRST

Paris, Feb. 5 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Groups of self-appointed reformers are patrolling the Parisian highways and byways these nights, tearing advertising posters from walls, raiding magazine stalls and hustling professional guides and touts into neighboring police stations.

The reformers are not committees of lady vigilantes but husky and athletic young men, who are under command of the Abbes Bethlehem and Petit Langlade. Every night these champions of morality and order select a different quarter for their demonstrations. Sometimes they make mass attacks, at other times they carry out individual acts of civic patriotism, because their aim is only, they claim, the preservation of the good name of the French capital in the estimation of foreign visitors.

Their mode of procedure consists in first warning persons whom they consider being offensive against morality. Members of the bands are pledged to enter any shop where they see a book or object of an obscene or suggestive nature openly displayed and to request the article's withdrawal within 24 hours.

"Usually our request is promptly granted," said the Abbe Petit Langlade, militant crusader, who heads the street-cleaning movement and who carries fifteen medals for bravery in the trenches on his chest.

"I am so happy . . that the last pimple is gone"

You, too, may be proud of a clear skin!

A CLEAR SKIN, and of even greater value to you—a strong organic vitality—comes only with the right number of red-blood-cells.

Whatever treatment you may use for your complexion, remember the important fact that natural beauty—a clear skin and a rose-petal complexion—comes from within.

More red-blood-cells and of the right quality! That's the answer to a sallow complexion and to pimples and boils. The way to regain the red-blood-cells is to take S.S.S.—the Tonic that will help Nature build up and enrich your blood. Your skin will clear up! Your whole body will be strengthened, invigorated!

When you take S.S.S. to get rid of these outside blemishes you are building up the system to ward off the graver diseases of which these blemishes are Nature's warning.

Blood is life! You cannot count your own red-blood-cells—that is technical! But you should know that they are the "ships" that sail in the blood and carry nourishment to all parts of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues.

Enlarged blood picture showing deficiency in red-blood-cells.

You can recognize a lowered count by the way you look and feel—such as body weakness, lack of appetite, underweight, paleness, sallow complexion, boils and pimples. They may indicate that you need S.S.S.

Pimples and blackheads disappeared

Mrs. Mary E. Parker, Bahama, N. C., writes: "Because of a rundown condition my appetite was poor. I felt tired in the mornings and was troubled with pimples and blackheads. Red humps came on my face once or twice monthly. After taking S.S.S. the pimples and blackheads disappeared and my skin became clear. I do not feel tired upon rising in the mornings. I had tried a number of medicines but S.S.S. is the one that helped me."

Complexion cleared up beautifully

Miss Mary Rank, Clearwater, N. Y., writes: "My face was blemished with many pimples. No treatment I used did them any good. I also had boils. My appetite was poor. My weight was off and I felt nervous. After taking S.S.S. my complexion cleared up beautifully. My appetite improved. I now rest well at night and am greatly benefited in every way. Because S.S.S. helped me I think it is the best blood medicine!"

QUAKE AREA PLACED UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Dead in New Zealand Set at 1,000; Survivors Leave Realm of Ruin.

FIND LIVING VICTIMS

Napier, New Zealand, Friday, Feb. 6 (A.P.).—New Zealand's realm of ruin was under martial law today. Armed Marines patrolled the streets to prevent looting, and to see that nothing hampered the ceaseless toil of rescue workers seeking survivors among the wreckage left by Tuesday's earthquake.

All day yesterday a great exodus continued, the inhabitants who had escaped death fleeing from the disease which it was feared might follow upon destruction of the city's sanitary system.

Communication between the razed towns of Hawkes Bay Province and the outside world was reestablished. With scores of doctors, nurses and other relief workers present, all that was possible was being done for the hundreds of injured still unable to be moved.

Recurrent Earth Shocks.

There were recurrent earth shocks during the evening which served again to terrify the population, but no serious damage was done.

Red Cross workers estimated the number of dead in the whole quake district at more than 1,000, but other reports made the figure lower. A final count will not be known probably for days, and probably never will be complete, because of the fires which raged through both Napier and Hastings, after the buildings had tumbled down.

The feverish search for persons still alive was rewarded when one woman, still breathing, was found in the debris of the Napier Hospital and another one at the Technical School, where many boys were killed when the building collapsed.

Living Victims Found.

Two other living victims were located and hopes were expressed they could be extricated.

These successes spurred the rescuers to fresh efforts, but most of their labors in the removal of fallen material revealed only the presence of crushed bodies.

The population has increased somewhat despite the death toll from the quake, for since Tuesday eight babies have been born in the park which was turned into a great casualty station for the care of the injured and the identification of the dead.

Forty-eight bodies were buried in a common grave at Hastings yesterday. Included were two unidentified young girls.

Sea Bed Raised.

Quakes continued today to shake Napier, Hastings and other towns of the region.

Survivors were further terrified last night by a heavy shock which raised the sea bed 4 feet at the Napier Jetty, where the British war sloop Veronica lay stranded. Fires again broke out at Hastings.

Prof. Sir Edgeworth Davis blames the quakes on changes in the Pacific Ocean. He explained that the ocean, becoming deeper and deeper, exerted a tremendous pressure on abutments of New Zealand, causing them to give way.

The wireless operator of the steamship Taranaki, describing the first quake, said it lasted 2½ minutes. He said there was no premonitory rumbling or warning of any kind.

Populace Terrified.

Gazing shoreward from the Taranaki's anchorage he declared, the ship's people were amazed to see Napier crumbling amid a cloud of dust. Other great clouds of dust rose simultaneously along the coast as far as the eye could see, he said, creating an effect resembling a bombardment of the headlands.

Hasting, New Zealand, Feb. 5 (A. P.)—Another sharp earthquake rocked the ruins of this town at 10 o'clock tonight, throwing the already frightened populace into further panic.

Martial law has been declared and no one is permitted to enter the business district without a permit, lest what is left of the buildings may collapse.

There has been some looting, but armed sentries were posted throughout the town tonight.

The American Consulate at Wellington, New Zealand, reported to the State Department yesterday that no names of Americans have yet appeared on the casualty list of the New Zealand earthquake.

Shelby Conducts Inquiry Into Police Car Crash

An investigation is being made by Inspector William S. Shelby, in charge of the Detective Bureau, of the accident early yesterday when a police scout car crashed into a house at 406 Rhode Island avenue northwest, after a collision with an automobile operated by Fireman Joseph P. The police car was operated by Detective Sergt. Joseph Sincovitz, accompanied by Privates B. A. Lemon, Ninth Precinct, and Henry J. Peterson, Sixth Precinct, both of whom were treated at Emergency Hospital for slight injuries. McGrath declared that he did not hear the police car siren and did not see the car in time.

K Street Store Robbed Of $250 in Antiques

Antiques having a reputed value of more than $250 were reported stolen yesterday from a shop at 1706 K street northwest. The thieves had entered by breaking glass in a rear door.

Among the articles reported missing by Francis S. Spendlove, the owner, were a French rosewood clock, valued at more than $100; two pairs of Sheffield candlesticks, $42; a Shetland bowl, $44, and a gold lacquer box, $49. Police obtained fingerprints.

MAN HELD IN ITALY IN BOMB-PLOT CASE

Suspect, Captured After Fight, Believed Naturalized U. S. Citizen.

EXPLOSIVES IN BAGGAGE

Rome, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Discovery of high explosive bombs in the baggage of Michele Schirru, said to be a naturalized American citizen, convinced police today of existence of what was decsribed as an important terrorist plot.

Schirru fired at policemen when he was being questioned, after his arrest Tuesday night, and this gave rise to wild rumors that a plot against the life of Premier Mussolini had been discovered. Police promptly denied the rumors.

Schirru turned an automatic pistol on three policemen and then shot himself through the head. This evening he was too weak to be questioned effectively. One of his victims, the vice commissary of police, Pasquale Ciani, may die.

One immediate result of the arrest was a police order for the closing of the large Hotel Albergo Reale for two months, for failure to properly identify Schirru when he registered there. The manager of the hotel said Schirru carried an American passport.

The order was suspended temporarily, on the intervention of a number of American tourists and others living in the hotel who protested to the police and the American Embassy.

The fact that the prisoner had only a small sum of money in his possession when arrested contributed to the police theory that he must have confederates in Rome, for he was known to have been living lavishly. Schirru was said to have been in the United States as late as March, 1930.

Albuquerque Shock Laid to Geological Fault Settling.

Albuquerque, N. Mex., Feb. 5 (A.P.). An earth tremor that shook Albuquerque last night was probably caused by a slipping of mountain rock near here at the point of fractures, Prof. R. W. Ellis, of the University of New Mexico geological department, said today.

Prof. Ellis said the slightest shifting of rock might cause an earth jar which would be felt for miles. He added disturbances of this kind have been experienced for a number of years in the Rio Grande Valley as far south as Socorro, N. Mex.

No serious damage from last night's 30-second shock was reported today. Many persons reported they were thrown out of bed. In theaters the disturbance caused a near-panic and many persons rushed to the streets.

Check and Change Artists Reappear

Drug Store Loses $16 and Some Merchandise Valued at $3.50.

Renewal of the operations of check-and-change artists was seen by local police yesterday on receiving a report from Baxter W. Seaton, manager of a drug store at 806 H street northeast, that the store had been mulcted of more than $16 and additional merchandise yesterday.

According to Seaton, a man about 25 years old came to the store and ordered merchandise valued at $3.50 sent to an address near Eighth and H streets northeast, along with change for $20. A porter from the store delivered the articles, and was given a check in return. On returning to the store it was found that the check was worthless.

The man gave the name Frank C. Morris, and police say that he rented a room at the place the goods were delivered for two days. He left immediately after receiving the merchandise. Police have broadcast a lookout and general warning to other stores.

FRENCH BANK TO AID GERMAN LOAN, CLAIM

$32,000,000 Fund May Be Underwritten in U. S., Holland and France.

REDS HECKLE BRUENING

Paris, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Reports that the Banque de Paris et Pays Bas, one of the most powerful financial institutions in France, had decided to participate in a loan of $32,000,000 to the German government were given credence in usually reliable quarters tonight.

At these sources it was said the French government virtually had given assent to such participation, which was hailed in some circles as a definite proof of improved financial relations between France and her former enemies.

According to reports, the loan will be underwritten in the United States by Lee, Higginson & Co.; in France by the Banque de Paris et Pays Bas, and in Holland by the Mendelssohn banking firm.

$5,000,000 by France.

The French collaboration, it was said, will be in the neighborhood of $5,000,000.

Many members of the Chamber of Deputies saw in the talked of move, victory for the policy of Clement Moret, governor of the Bank of France, to reestablish Paris as one of the world's money markets, and to offset by foreign loans some of the disadvantages of France's big gold surplus.

The prospect of French funds going to the German government was not received without some objections by members of the Right group in the Chamber of Deputies.

Deputy Louis Dumiat served notice he would file an interpellation "to ascertain the intentions of the government relative to a projected German loan in France at a time when the economic crisis is becoming aggravated."

Breuning Scouts Dictatorship.

Berlin, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Talk of a dictatorship in Germany is ridiculous, Chancellor Breuning told the Reichstag today in his first speech since resumption of the Parliament after the Christmas recess.

It is imperative, however, he said, that the members recognize their responsibility for adopting the "Spartan" budget for 1931 by the end of March at least, giving the world assurance that Germany is worthy of credit and paving the way for an eventual solution of the reparations problem.

The Communists heckled Breuning continually and in the debate one of the National Socialists demanded immediate resignation of the cabinet and dissolution of the Reichstag.

OIL LOBBY'S FUTILE MOVE.

The commerce committee of the Senate has reported out favorably a bill to limit importation of crude petroleum and to prohibit imports of refined oil products. There is no indication that Congress will reverse itself by allowing this measure to become law.

Sponsors of this bill had it referred to the commerce committee, knowing that it would be pigeon-holed if it went to the finance committee, where it belonged. The commerce committee rushed through hearings and reported the measure before the finance committee found time to protest. But it is improbable that the proposal will be allowed to go to the floor of the Senate before it has been scrutinized by the finance committee.

By tradition and custom all matters affecting the tariff must be referred to the committee on finance. Senators Shortridge, of California, and Thomas, of Oklahoma, both members of that committee, knew that it would not vote for further reckless exploitation of the country's oil resources. The bill was, therefore, adroitly drawn to "limit" petroleum imports rather than to impose a duty on them. The Capper bill would have the same effect as tariff legislation, except that it would deprive the Government of revenue that would be collected under a tariff. To complete the subterfuge the bill was sent to the commerce committee, which has no right to pass upon tariff legislation.

Enactment of this bill would have the effect of drawing upon America's limited oil reserves for the benefit of other nations. It would limit exports of crude oil to 16,000,000 barrels per year, when the United States exports about 25,000,000 barrels annually. It would prohibit exports of refined petroleum products while this country would continue to send approximately 133,000,000 barrels of refined oil abroad.

At present the United States is exporting nearly 50 per cent more oil than it imports. Exports of refined products alone amounted to 132,960,000 barrels in 1930, compared with refined imports of 62,129,000 barrels. Without a tariff the oil wells of the United States are being drained for foreign markets. Yet the oil lobby is flooding the country with invidious propaganda for the purpose of limiting imports that would offset this loss.

The proposal to place a duty or a limitation upon oil imports is one of the most indefensible pieces of legislation that Congress has ever been asked to enact. The United States, despite its limited reserves, is producing nearly two-thirds of the world's oil supply. If this country is not to be left to the mercy of foreign monopolies, exports should be curtailed and imports increased. A duty upon oil or a limitation upon free imports would be an economic outrage.

CHARLES F. CARUSI.

The death of Charles F. Carusi deprives Washington of one of its most distinguished citizens. Since 1925 Mr. Carusi had been a member of the Board of Education, and in 1927 he was elected president of the board. For almost six years prior to his death he had been chancellor of National University. He was also professor of the history of common law in the postgraduate school of jurisprudence of American University.

As a member and as president of the Board of Education Mr. Carusi played a prominent part in the improvement of public education in the District. He was largely responsible for the formulation of the school building program that is now under way and for the transition of the local normal schools to teachers' colleges of university grade. These colleges he had hoped to make the nucleus of a free system of higher education for local young men and women. He was a gallant fighter for more and better schools. Young in spirit and vigorous in body, he leaves an unfinished task. It will not be easy to find his successor. Washington mourns the death of a fine citizen and offers its sincere condolences to the bereaved family.

RECKLESS RADIO POLICE CARS.

In the interim since the police broadcasting system was commissioned there has been a series of traffic accidents involving radio-equipped police cars. In addition there has apparently been an increase in wild and dangerous dashes of police cars through the streets, with their sirens screaming. What obviously has happened is that the officers in charge of the radio-equipped cars, receiving flashes from headquarters, are taking liberties with the public safety in attempting to make records for speed in responding to alarms.

It is a splendid thing that the Police Department has been given the most modern facilities for speedily apprehending crime. These facilities, however, should be used with discretion. If the use of the radio means that the streets are to be filled, day and night, with careening, shrieking patrol cars rushing to arrest minor offenders and imperiling, in their mad rushes, the safety of the public, a halt will have to be called. While law violators should be apprehended whenever possible, the first consideration of the police should be the safety of the public. At no time can the arrest of a criminal justify the killing or maiming of a law-abiding citizen.

Policemen in charge of radio-equipped patrol cars should be cautioned against dashing madly through traffic in response to reports of minor crimes or the violation of ordinances.

THE SENATE TANGLED AGAIN.

By setting itself up as prosecutor of Dr. George Otis Smith, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, the Senate takes a step that is without precedent and which strikes the public as an absurdity. The resolution provides that in case the district attorney refuses to act, an attorney appointed for the Senate may proceed.

Having made a futile gesture to withdraw its previous confirmation of Dr. Smith's nomination, the Senate proposes to remove him by quo warranto proceedings. But, as Senator Shortridge pointed out, such proceedings can be initiated only by the district attorney on his own initiative, or at the request of an interested person. The only other person who has a right to contest the validity of Dr. Smith's appointment is one who claims the office for himself; and there is no such claimant.

This action is all the more absurd because of the Senate's face-saving gesture in "reconfirming" the other two members of the commission who had offended the antipower bloc. The Senate by this vote admits that the attack upon two of the commissioners was unwarranted. Yet, if the third must be punished by removal from office, the others deserve the same punishment, as the commissioners acted in unison after they had been duly appointed, confirmed and sworn into office.

Attorney General Mitchell will probably direct the district attorney's office to ignore the Senate's request. The matter may then be carried to the court by the Senate's special prosecutor, and the courts will have an opportunity to inform the Senate that quo warranto proceedings are not the mode prescribed by the Constitution for removal of executive officers.

COST OF A FEDERAL DOLE.

Opposition to a dole for the unemployed and the drought-affected is based not only on the fact that the dole system is repugnant to American ideals, but also on the fact that if all the unemployed were to be dealt with alike at the expense of the Treasury the cost would be stupendous. Various estimates have been offered with respect to the probable cost, but they have been, at best, mere guesses. For that reason it is pertinent to examine the cost of the dole in England. The Economic League, of London, recently reported as follows:

> The cost of paying the so-called insurance benefit to the unemployed is now $518,950,000 a year, of which $373,450,000 is supplied by the taxpayer, $67,900,000 by the employed and $77,600,000 by the employers. Of the sum supplied by the taxpayer, $106,700,000 represents the cost of relieving the fund altogether of the support of 350,000 persons who fail to satisfy even the present actuarial test. The complete inadequacy of that test is shown by the fact that in spite of this huge subsidy the insurance fund is running into debt at the rate of $194,000,000 a year. This figure means that, after making allowance for the payment of the administration, the fund is having to support about 500,000 more persons that it can afford.

In considering these figures two facts should be kept in mind. First, the individual benefit paid an unemployed Briton would be totally inadequate to sustain an unemployed American, except on a standard so low as to constitute a national disgrace; second, the total number of unemployed in Great Britain (approximately 2,500,000) is only one-half the total number of unemployed in the United States. An American dole would probably cost at least four times as much as the British dole. Those who are working for a Federal dole are supporting a project which, if it adequately cared for the unemployed, would bankrupt the Treasury.

THE LOS ANGELES IN MANEUVERS.

The participation of the dirigible Los Angeles in the fleet maneuvers off Panama is of extraordinary interest. Delivered to the Government by her German makers in 1924, the Los Angeles was dedicated to peace-time service under the terms of the Versailles Treaty. In all the years she has been in commission this is the first time she has actually participated in naval maneuvers. It is only because the signatory powers acquiesced in using the Los Angeles in maneuvers on condition that all information obtained would be available to those powers that the airship is permitted to join the fleet.

The Los Angeles probably will be used as a scout and patrol craft. She will be assigned to the defending fleet, as part of which she will range far to sea, searching for the attacking vessels and reporting their position to the defenders. In this task she should easily prove her great potential value. Scout planes must return frequently to their bases, but the Los Angeles will be able to stay at sea for several days, maintaining constant communication with the defending fleet.

If the Los Angeles proves of value as a scout craft interest in the dirigible as a weapon of war will be increased. The Los Angeles is already antiquated. As compared with the new dirigibles now being built for the Navy at Akron she is about as efficient as a flintlock rifle as compared with a machine gun. Therefore, if the Los Angeles serves the fleet satisfactorily great things may be expected from the ZRS-4 and ZRS-5 when they are finally put in service.

The Los Angeles will be watched by critical eyes in the Panama maneuvers. The airship has stanch supporters in the Navy, but it also has severe critics. Lighter-than-air craft seem so peculiarly fitted for scouting duty, however, that the Los Angeles in these maneuvers may prove so valuable as to confound the critics.

SANTO DOMINGO NEEDS HELP.

Reports from Santo Domingo are to the effect that the work of rehabilitation following the hurricane of last September is handicapped because of delay in arranging a government loan. The government of Santo Domingo is required by treaty to obtain the consent of the United States before increasing its indebtedness. A commission appointed by President Trujillo has been in Washington for several weeks, appealing for prompt action.

The credit of the republic is excellent. Under the system that has been in operation since President Roosevelt's time the customs revenues have been administered by a receiver general nominated by the United States, and revenues have been more than sufficient to finance the government and amortize outstanding loans. The outstanding public debt amounts to about $20,000,000. A loan of about $5,000,000 is necessary for the purpose of meeting installments upon this debt and for reconstruction works, including buildings and bridges.

In view of the self-reliance and courage manifested by President Trujillo and his administration in tackling the heart-breaking situation resulting from the hurricane, prompt and favorable action by the United States seems to be warranted. The proposed increase of debt is well within the resources of the republic. The loan would hasten the recovery of the country and thereby increase its productive capacity and revenues. The people are hard-working and are loyally supporting their President.

ARMY-NAVY COOPERATION

By WILLIAM C. RIVERS, Major General, U. S. A., Retired, in the New York Times.

Opportunities for Army and Navy officers to become better acquainted with each other and with the work and duties of the sister service of each is the subject of a recent recommendation of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Ernest Lee Jahncke, who suggests as a beginning that Navy officers be sent to the Military Academy and Army officers to the Naval Academy to give a course of eight lectures yearly, which might be attended by the officers of the particular school visited and by the cadets or midshipmen of the senior classes.

While the limitations of such a course are obvious, nevertheless the subject is one that should receive support from the authorities and from the press. It would seem that such inter-academy relations might easily be further developed in time of peace, with the result that the efficiency of the graduates of both schools might be increased in war time.

Why should not peace-time routine include, with the authority of Congress, the detail of several Army officers at Annapolis for a period of two or four years and of Navy officers at West Point as instructors, and one or two as tactical officers? Only in the routine of such work, and in the associations at the mess and elsewhere locally, will there be formed friendships that can give to the officers of each service an intimate view of the life of the sister service.

The same principle should, in justice to the efficiency of the Army, go further, and junior Army officers should in peace time see service with units of all arms or branches of the regular Army. With the return of the prewar system of having the units of the small regular Army at widely scattered small posts, made necessary no doubt by the needs and demands of the several States in which Army posts have long existed, and with the unfortunate failure of the Army after the war at least to have the eight or more Army technical schools at one large Army center, it is interesting to observe that the average young Army officer has quickly gone back to the old system where we as young officers had never seen a brigade or division and knew only from theoretical studies what such units were.

All junior Army officers should be given opportunity, even under present conditions, to actually serve with the different arms of the Army. This and the habitual exchange of officers between West Point and Annapolis could well be considered in connection with the wise and timely suggestion of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy. The only additional cost would be possibly a small sum for the travel of officers transferred and exchanged. No doubt each school would gain by having the service of graduates of the other national academy as instructors in such subjects as languages and chemistry and mathematics and gunnery.

The present continued isolation of the several branches of the Army, with the isolation of the several postgraduate schools, and simply theoretical study of the work of other arms as well as only theoretical study on maps of the work of divisions and brigades, without opportunity for officers to serve with other than their own arms or to carry on their peace-time study at times in contact with a brigade or division in being, will produce just one kind of an army. It must inevitably be an army that will not be at a reasonable state of efficiency in an emergency; an army with officers lacking in knowledge and experience and flexibility and mental keenness and power that could well be given them in time of peace at no appreciable additional cost to the state.

With modern methods of mobilization and transportation war is a fast game and demands officers of high and ready mental caliber. Indeed, if the small extra cost to transfer officers to serve with other arms be a barrier to improvement, there will be many who have a keen memory of what they went through in our preparation for recent wars who will have little doubt that the saving to the budget might better be made by having fewer officers and men ordinarily—a smaller number of better grade and better trained officers might be, in time of need, a great national asset.

Where none was intended;
Fancying wrong where all was right
Oft was he offended.
Hurts which others never felt

Troubles others laughed away
Bitterly depressed him;
Trivial things which people say
Seriously distressed him.
Cares which others tossed aside
Gloomingly he magnified.

Those who tried his friends to be Soon he'd disagree with;
People quickly learned that he Was difficult to be with.
One so sensitive to pain
Lonely often must remain.

Strange he never wondered why
Others stayed so cheerful
Underneath the self-same sky
Where he was so tearful.
Suffering many a hurt and sting
They could often laugh and sing.

Every care and grief and woe
That on him seemed piling
Had at times been theirs to know,
But he saw them smiling.
Yet o'er fancied hurts and slights
He spent many sleepless nights.

The One Who Gives Men Hope Is the One Who Inspires All Great Works.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

On the 22d day of February, this year, America will celebrate the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

If you have any capacity for gratitude, you should join in the celebration gladly, for it is to Washington that you owe all that you have and all that you are.

Washington made your country free, and in so doing paved the way for the greatest and richest civilization the world has ever known.

Men do their best work when they are free to work for themselves.

When Washington began his fight for freedom, no British subject in America could rise far above the station into which he was born. Only the favored few could hope for education or wealth or place of power. The others had little ambition for they had little reason to hope. In poverty they were born and in poverty they would die.

When the land was made free and its government established on the basis of equality, hope and ambition began to quicken the hearts of the poorest and the most humble. Every man knew that his future depended on his own worth and industry—that wealth and honor and place were his for the earning.

That scheme of things seems commonplace now, but then it was a novelty—a blessed state of which men had dreamed in vain for centuries.

Thousands came from Europe to share the privilege of freedom—adventurous souls, haters of tyranny, ambitious to climb, willing to stand or fall by their own merit—and the intelligence and industry of these contributed largely to the building of the world's greatest nation.

It was equality of opportunity and the fact of freedom that made America great, and there would have been neither opportunity nor freedom without the wisdom and the faith and the courage of Washington.

By giving America freedom he gave men ambition and hope, opportunity and wealth, education and luxury.

Some people make much of the fact that he was an aristocrat who despised the common people, but the indictment is a compliment. The common people of his day were unwashed and acrawl with vermin. And the middle class people of today, who are in many ways superior to Washington because of the opportunities he brought them, scorn the same sorry class no less than he did.

Yet this middle class that makes America great would be for the most part low class except for Washington, and to honor him is to praise the path by which ordinary men climbed to their present high estate.

Democracy's Blunder.
New York Herald-Tribune.

That bright dream of a Democratic walkover in 1932 which the publicity directors of the party had painted in glowing colors has faded swiftly. One short month ago Mr. Jouett Shouse could write confidently of the future as if everything was over except a few more pay checks from Mr. Raskob. The sooner Mr. Hoover packed up the better. Now earnest Democratic souls hereabout are moaning and cursing the stabs of fortune. "Must a Democratic leader always be an ass?" they lament before the spectacle in Congress. "Can't we win even with the aid of a world depression?" * * * At the moment the Democratic party is doing its utmost to insist that plain business sense has no place in a government and that only wild men are fit to rule. A few more weeks of such folly and not a dozen Raskobs, signing checks night and day, can save the party from another rout.

Raskob Calls a Halt.
New York Times.

No one who reads the Democratic newspapers throughout the country, or who knows what Democrats of substance and of independence are thinking and saying today, can fail to have noted the rising sense of alarm lest their party representatives in the Senate make fools of themselves and throw away their fine political chances. Something of this feeling must have been conveyed in some forcible way to Mr. Harrison, as assistant, or frequently as volunteer, leader of his party in the Senate. The result, however brought about, is a sign of returning political sanity and as such must be welcomed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Suggests Increased Enlistments in Army and Navy to Provide Jobs for Single Men.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We would ask Congress to consider the fact that while tens of thousands of our young men who have no family responsibilities are compelled to compete for jobs against those who have families dependent on them, both our land and sea forces are being cut to the bone, and recruiting officers are daily compelled to turn away scores of eligible applicants for enlistments.

It is a well-known fact that both services could easily absorb many thousands. To fill up these services at the present hour would be a positive measure for relief in that it would afford the young men not only food and clothing but also a valuable training and at the same time decrease the competitive pressure upon those whose dependents make their need of employment compulsory.

Charity in any form weakens national morale, for it advertises economic disorganization. Therefore the less we resort to it the better. An immediate if temporary expansion of our Army and Navy enlisted forces would be a decided step toward a prevention of doles in any form. We would therefore respectfully urge upon Congress the consideration of this form of aid for the unemployed, and we do so all the more heartily because we know that every citizen so trained is likely to repay the investment manyfold in increased loyalty and service to his country.

Virginia Democrat Says President and House Are "the Only Ones Who Are Attending to the Public Business."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator Borah's outburst on the floor of the Senate Monday, in support of the dole advocated by the Democrats of that body, will be taken as a matter of course by the American people, for, while it may have been expected that the real leader of those Democrats, Senator Norris, would lead off with his usual bombshell, the fact that this lead was taken by Senator Borah, the assistant to Mr. Norris, is not surprising. Both of these so-called Republicans are just as anxious for a special session of Congress as is the Democratic leader, Senator Robinson.

All of those senators who have promised to waste the taxpayers' money by filibustering to force a special session, know very well that such tactics will result in a loss to those very same people for whom the $25,000,000 is to be given of an amount greatly in excess of that sum by reason of the prolongation of the present depression, which will certainly result from the uncertainties a special session will cause.

So far as the voters of this country are concerned they have already reached the conclusion that the President and the House are the only ones who are attending to the public business, and if a popular vote were taken today not a member of the Senate on the Democratic side would be reelected.

VIRGINIA DEMOCRAT.

Democratic Doctrine Has Always Opposed "Paternalism" Like a Federal Dole.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I can not understand how any public leader can advocate Federal doles; that is, unless he is a reckless opportunist. In the past we were taught that paternalism can not be safely tolerated in the American system, and politicians, Republican and Democratic, professed to view it with abhorrence.

In the case of the present Federal dole proposed, the attitude of its Democratic friends is especially surprising.

There was a long stretch of years when not only Grover Cleveland, but Democrats everywhere posed as the special foes of doles, and in the press and on the stump Democracy rang the charges on the evils of paternalism. The Republican party had only to suggest a fresh Civil War pension and it would be subjected to Democratic reproof on account of its "paternalistic" aspect. Republicans could not turn a sympathetic ear to the cry of an infant industry without inviting Democratic censure and the stigma of paternalism.

In the light of history, the way it looks to me, as a Democrat in the ranks, is that the Democratic senators who favor the $25,000,000 dole are stultifying themselves and their party. W. T. T.

Walks in Franklin Square Dilapidated and Fountain Always Dry.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to join with one of your readers in calling attention to the deplorable condition of the walks in Franklin Square—probably our most beautiful city park. In connection with the present unemployment situation the statement was recently made in the newspapers that, to partially alleviate this condition, the walks in the various city parks would be improved. Knowing the terrible condition of the walks in this particular park we naturally expected that it would be one of the first to be improved.

During the heated term this park is frequented daily by thousands in search of a breath of air, and many use it for sleeping purposes at night. Notwithstanding this, no water has been turned on in the fountain for several years. It would be a really fine thing if the water could be turned on in this park. S. K. P.

Indorses Suggestion of Subways to Relieve Traffic Congestion.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Here is a hearty second to the suggestion of Parker Williams relative to subways to relieve the traffic congestion in certain sections of the city.

Of course traffic experts and engineers would have to determine the practicability of such subways.

They would certainly cost immensely, but would as certainly bring ample compensation in the saving of "lives, limbs and time."

EXPORTS OF WHEAT FROM RUSSIA CLIMB

Gains for Fiscal Year Also Shown in Lumber and Oil.

STALIN ASKS SACRIFICES

Moscow, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Official figures for Soviet Russia's grain export for the fiscal year 1929-1930, including principally wheat and rye, were 2,969,408 tons, valued at 198,078,000 roubles. (The rouble is worth approximately 50 cents). This compared with a grain export of 813,314, valued at 83,098,000 roubles, in 1928-29.

As an answer to charges of "dumping" in foreign markets, authorities cite the grain export for 1913, which was given as 10,670,160 tons valued at 594,501,000 roubles. Grain was exported principally to European countries.

Animal husbandry exports, including butter, eggs, hides, wool and such, totaled 96,058,000 roubles for 1929-30, in contrast with 206,271,000 for 1913.

Lumber Increase Shown.

Lumber was one of the few exports which compared favorably with 1913, showing for the past fiscal year 7,367,741 tons, against 7,603,480 tons in 1913. The lumber exported in 1929-30 was valued at 180,198,000 roubles and that in 1913 at 164,930,000 roubles.

Petroleum and crude oil exports in 1929-30 totaled 4,504,869 tons, amounting to 187,353,000 roubles compared with 947,770 tons and 80,086,000 roubles in 1913.

The Soviet Union also shipped abroad 1,799,219 tons of coal, valued at 16,985,000 roubles in the last fiscal year. No coal figures are given for 1913, but for 1928-29 the figures were 1,150,639 tons and 9,063,000 roubles.

U. S. Sales Large.

The biggest imports to the Soviet Union in 1930 were from the United States, being valued at 280,360,000 roubles, compared with exports there valued at 44,379,000 roubles.

England received the greatest exports, being valued at 238,158,000 roubles, while the imports by Russia were only 78,925,000 roubles.

Russia's second biggest purchases came from Germany and totaled 234,389,000 roubles, in return for which she sold Germany goods and produce valued at 214,254,000.

Joseph Stalin today warned Russia's millions of workers and peasants that their sacrifices, which have been considerable during the past two years, must be continued if the country is to be rejuvenated and placed in the class of advanced world powers.

Sees Program Speeded.

He was cheered before and after the speech, which was delivered before the National Industrial Congress.

Throwing down the gantlet to the "rights," who he said had been abolished and whose policy was the cessation of the speedy industrialization order, Stalin decreed that the present tempo must be increased rather than slowed down. At the same time he asserted that the present generation of bolsheviks have more comforts than in the past.

Saying that the five-year industrialization plan will positively be completed in four years, he added that it should actually be completed in three years if all national resources were taken advange of.

Lady Astor Is Cheered After All-Night Session

London, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Lady Astor was up all last night while the House of Commons debated the agricultural lands bill, but she was fresher than any of her male colleagues as the house resumed this afternoon.

Body of Ancient King Believed Discovered

Shaftsbury, England, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—A lead casket, believed to contain the remains of the murdered King Edward the Martyr, has been discovered at the Abbey of Alfred the Great. Historians are examining the find to make definite identification.

Edward the Martyr was slain by his stepmother to pave the way to the throne for her son at Corfe in 978. Three years later the remains were brought here and enshrined. In 1539, after the dissolution of the abbey, they could not be found.

Income Tax Facts

NO. 5.

Failure to understand that section of the revenue act which relates to the apportionment of the personal exemption of persons who were married during the taxable year has resulted in numerous errors in income tax returns, usually to the disadvantage of the taxpayer.

The act provides that if the marital status of a taxpayer changes during the year, his personal exemption shall be determined by apportionment in accordance with the number of months he was single or married. The fractional part of a month is disregarded, unless it amounts to more than half a month, in which case it is considered a month.

For example, a couple married on October 14, 1930, may file a joint return and claim an exemption of $3,125, which is 9-12 of $1,500, or $1,125, for the husband while single, plus 9-12 of $1,500 for the wife while single, plus 3-12 of the $3,500 for the period they were married. Should they file separate returns, each is entitled to an exemption of $1,562.50, which is 9-12 of $1,500 plus ¼ of 3-12 of $3,500.

In no instance may the total personal exemption allowed husband and wife living together on the last day of the taxable year exceed $3,500, irrespective of whether separate returns are filed or not. If, for example, a person married on October 14 was from January 1 to October 14 the head of a family, he or she would be allowed a total exemption of $3,500, and the other spouse, though single during that period, would be allowed no exemption.

The provision relating to apportionment of the personal exemption applies also to the head of a family. A taxpayer who on October 14 ceased to be the head of a family—the support in one household of one or more relatives having been discontinued—is entitled to an exemption of $3,000, which is 9-12 of $3,500 plus 3-12 of $1,500.

With respect to the $400 credit for a dependent, the taxpayer's status on the last day of the taxable year determines this credit. If his support of such dependent ceased before the end of the taxable year, he is not entitled to his credit.

LONDON TO MODIFY STAND ON PALESTINE

Jewish Paper Reports New Document Will Tone Down Passfield's.

LIFTS IMMIGRATION BAR

London, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—The London Jewish Chronicle says a new government document on Palestine, modifying the Lord Passfield white paper, which caused widespread dissatisfaction among Zionists last summer, will be issued in a few days.

The document will deal with most of the Jewish objections to the white paper, the Chronicle adds, in such a manner as to eliminate Jewish ill feeling.

A summary of the contents of the document, as reported by the paper, follows:

The Passfield restrictions on Jewish immigration are altogether removed and the old system of labor schedule immigration is introduced.

Land purchase limitations are practically abolished and, in addition, certain free state lands still vacant in Palestine will be placed at the disposal of Jews.

Appreciations are expressed of the work of Zionist institutions in Palestine, which the Passfield white paper was considered in Zionist circles to have criticized.

The Chronicle says that negotiations between the Zionists and the British government will continue, to include such matters as a legislative assembly and a round-table conference between Arabs and Jews, with a view to reaching an understanding between the two peoples.

The document will be published in the form of a letter to Dr. Chaim Whizmann, who conducted the negotiations on behalf of the Jews, and on the British side will be signed either by Foreign Minister Henderson or Prime Minister MacDonald.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency said today Lord Passfield was about to resign as colonial secretary. The colonial office neither denied nor confirmed the report.

Receivership Plea Denied by Adkins

District Man Filed Action Against Hambleton Co., Brokerage Firm.

Receivership for Hambleton & Co., internationally known investment brokers, was denied yesterday by Justice Jesse C. Adkins in District Supreme Court.

The suit for receivership was filed by Robert E. Funkhouser, of 5315 Colorado avenue northwest, and alleged that the firm had closed offices in several other cities and was a party defendant in suits in the District which seek judgments totaling $3,500,000.

The company, in its answer filed yesterday just before the hearing, declared it had no intention of evading the damages sought against it. It also specified that due notice of the closing of its Philadelphia and its New York office had been given the public.

the fact that the man who said it is not given to loose talking and has the confidence of House leaders, although he expressly declared he was speaking only for himself.

Besides Western members of Congress, the Michigan delegation and members of the committee on appropriations, public lands and irrigation and reclamation will attend, with their wives. Phone Company Wins Tax Fight

District Supreme Court Agrees to Return of $74,455 Collected.

The District Supreme Court agreed yesterday to a return to the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of $74,455.50, said to have been collected as excessive taxes. Suits had been filed by the company.

The verdict was returned on stipulation of counsel. The stipulation was based on an agreement that the company should withdraw a suit to exclude gross earnings or revenues from interstate toll, leased lines and radio, in addition to incomes from the investment of certain funds.

Attorney George P. Hoover appeared for the telephone company; Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride and his assistant, Frank H. Stephens, appeared for the District.

Reward Offered For Missing Fliers

Mother of Mrs. Beryl Hart Seeks to Spur Hunt for Lost Pair.

New York, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—The mother of Mrs. Beryl Hart, flier who vanished with her pilot, Lieut. W. S. MacLaren, somewhere between Bermuda and the Azores on an attempted pay-load flight from the United States to Paris, offered a reward today for the finding of the pair or the recovery of their bodies.

The reward was offered through the Portuguese consul general, 10,000 escudos (a little less than $550) for the finding of the bodies and twice that amount if the two are found alive. The offer extends for 30 days.

Mrs. Hart and Lieut. MacLaren disappeared on January 10.

Ten Additional Cases Of Flu Are Reported

Ten additional influenza cases were reported to the District Health Department yesterday, bringing the total since January 1 to 129, which is 120 more than were recorded this time last year. While the cases have been increasing rapidly within the last ten days, jumping from about 40, health officials contend there is nothing as yet to be alarmed about.

Not only is the death rate very low, according to Health Officer William C. Fowler, but many of the physicians who report the cases state that they are not certain whether their patients have flu or la grippe. Pneumonia cases this year now number 277, as compared to 175 for the same period in 1930. Twelve of these were reported yesterday. There have been six deaths.

White House State Dinner Given Speaker

Congressional Club Is Host at Reception for Mr. Curtis.

WITH the President and Mrs. Hoover entertaining at dinner in honor of the Speaker of the House and Mrs. Longworth, and the Vice President and his sister, Mrs. Gann, the guests in whose honor the Congressional Club received at a brilliant function at their clubhouse, America's "royal family" crossed the stage last night straight into the glare of a shining pathway where all the world looks on.

At the White House, where took place the only dinner of state character this week, there assembled from various parts of the country eminent folk famous for their wit and fancy, bidden to add their conversational gifts in opposition to those of the hosts and their notably sparkling guests of honor.

Among the ranking guests were Representative John N. Garner, Democratic floor leader and "in line," he says, for the official car which transports to the Capitol and back Speaker Longworth. Mrs. Garner also was present. Representative John Q. Tilson, Republican floor leader, and Mrs. Tilson also were at the dinner. Other guests were:

Former Postmaster General and Mrs. Harry S. New.

Former Ambassador to Great Britain and Mrs. Alanson B. Houghton.

Mr. C. Bascom Slemp.

Mr. and Mrs. Sewell Lee Avery, of Chicago.

Dr. Lewellys F. Barker and Mrs. Barker.

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Burke.

Gen. and Mrs. Robert E. Wood.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, jr.

Miss Susan Dyer, of California.

Capt. Charles Russell Train.

Maj. John M. Eager.

Mrs. Hoover chose pink roses, freesia and maiden-hair fern, combined in an effective arrangement, for the state dining table.

After the dinner, Miss Rosa Ponselle and Mr. Ernest Zimbalist gave a program in the east room. Mr. Romano Romani and Mr. Theodore Saidenberg were the accompanists.

Although of comparatively short duration the reception last night at the Congressional Club was marked by brilliancy reflected by the large number of distinguished guests in attendance. With the reception rooms well filled by 9 o'clock a survey of the groups chatting here and there revealed nearly everybody in congressional circles and many others of Washington's social sets as there.

With the arrival of the Vice President and Mrs. Gann about 9:30 o'clock the buzz of conversation gave way to a formal air. Mr. Curtis, accompanied by Mrs. Porter H. Dale, president of the Congressional Club, and Mrs. Gann, with Mrs. C. William Ramseyer, vice president, headed the procession up the grand stairway to the gayly decorated drawing room.

The members of the board also received the honor guests in the large reception hall, following them upstairs. They were Mrs. Clarence F. Lea, Mrs. S. Wallace Dempsey, Mrs. Tom Connally, Mrs. Daniel Reed, Mrs. Joe Crail and Mrs. Claystone Briggs.

Spring flowers and a generous arrangement of palms, ferns and greenery transformed the "supper nook" into a bower of beauty. Presiding at the tables and assisting as hostesses were members of the club, who represented all parts of the Union, with a few widely known Washington hostesses who slipped in and out among the groups, making every one feel at home.

The group of hostesses included:

Mrs. Homer Hoch, Mrs. Nathaniel B. Dial, Mrs. J. R. Kinder, Mrs. Ladislas Lazaron, Mrs. Edwin P. Ladd, Mrs. W. P. Lambertson, Mrs. Robert Lansing, Mrs. Clarence F. Lea, Mrs. Elmer O. Actress Is Silent On Whipping Star

Buster Keaton, Scratched and Bruised, Blames Bet for Attack.

Los Angeles, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Kathleen Key, former film beauty, who crashed the gates of that fatic circle begun in Hollywood by John Gilbert and Jim Tully and, by the admission of none other than her victim, Buster Keaton, has come through with flying colors.

The comedian Keaton's part in the affair, in his own words, is that he was beaten by her in an argument over a wager while Cliff Edwards, the "Ukulele Ike" of radio and screen, and Clarence Locan, press agent, fled the scene.

And while Edwards and Locan were beating a hasty retreat, so Keaton afterward related, a little Negro boy, Willy, man of all tasks for the screen clown, finally came to his rescue by calling police. They forcefully subdued the excited woman and took her to the Culver City jail, but later released her without filing charges. Today Miss Key locked her door to all callers, telling them to see "Keaton about that."

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

HELPING TO THINK STRAIGHT.

Children often amuse us by their twisted reasoning and naive conclusions.

The average child's mind is full of all sorts of misconceptions about the world in which he lives, about the origins of things he sees and uses every day of his life.

It will take several years of alert observation, experience and experiment before he understands such things in anything like an adult way. Meanwhile he will say and do all sorts of funny things because of his ignorance and confusion.

Many of us make the mistake of laughing at a child for these evidences of childishness. Or we may adopt the "I knew better all the time" attitude when his lack of knowledge has brought him into difficulties. This only makes him feel inferior or resentful. It does not help him to correct his thinking.

Children learn to think first with their five senses. A child who has not been permitted thoroughly to live through this stage of development is apt to suffer always from a certain lack of the vividness and definiteness of his knowledge and in his power to think and act clearly upon it.

If a child is to acquire the best possible use of his mind, he must first of all have plenty of experience. While he is a baby let him manipulate and experiment with everything which interests him.

As he grows older take him with you to the grocery store, the railroad station. Let him watch building operations, odd jobs of plumbing or carpentering about the house. Let him help with the care of pets, let him visit a farm.

After he has acquired a certain background of direct experience, he is helped by patient and simple explanations, in terms as concrete as possible.

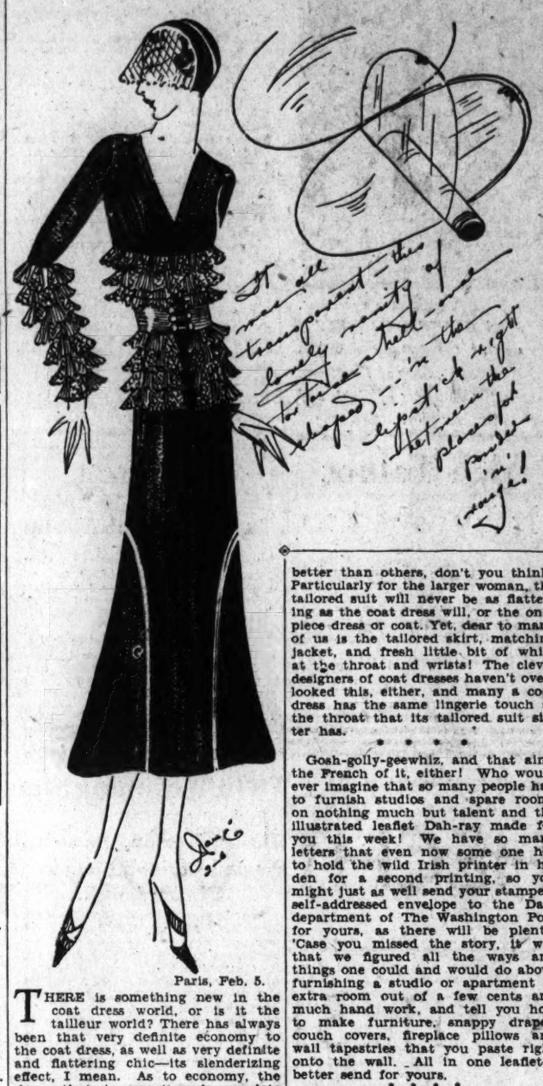
Jane Dare INTERPRETS the MODE

It could be either gold lace or ecru, and the belt pink or turquoise suede, while the dress must be black crepe. (A Dah-ray Design.)



Paris, Feb. 5.

THERE is something new in the coat dress world, or is it the tailleur world? There has always been that very definite economy to the coat dress, as well as very definite and flattering chic—its slenderizing effect, I mean. As to economy, the dress that is smart and complete enough to wear without a coat, yet snug enough to wear under a coat for the cooler days, is something that every woman should think about these days!

And this spring there is the coat dress that is developed along the two-piece effects of tailored suits, yet is only one garment. That's what is new in the coat-dress-suit world, and welcome as such. Particularly when this single garment is developed in two or three colors! When this enters into the picture, you have gayety and youthfulness in a way that heretofore only prints were able to command, and who isn't a bit tired of prints? Because they have become either entirely standardized, or too eccentric in an effort to be different, for the average taste.

Not that the tailleur isn't still very much the thing for spring! But certain types wear little tailored suits better than others, don't you think? Particularly for the larger woman, the tailored suit will never be as flattering as the coat dress will, or the one-piece dress or coat. Yet, dear to many of us is the tailored skirt, matching jacket, and fresh little bit of white at the throat and wrists! The clever designers of coat dresses haven't overlooked this, either, and many a coat dress has the same lingerie touch at the throat that its tailored suit sister has.

* * * *

Gosh-golly-geewhiz, and that ain't the French of it, either! Who would ever imagine that so many people had to furnish studios and spare rooms on nothing much but talent and the illustrated leaflet Dah-ray made for you this week! We have so many letters that even now some one has to hold the wild Irish printer in his den for a second printing, so you might just as well send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for yours, as there will be plenty. 'Case you missed the story, it was that we figured all the ways and things one could and would do about furnishing a studio or apartment or extra room out of a few cents and much hand work, and tell you how to make furniture, snappy drapes, couch covers, fireplace pillows and wall tapestries that you paste right onto the wall. All in one leaflet—better send for yours.

* * * *

Ho-humm, why are we so good to you! You see, Dah-ray is in Paris now, and loves to have her "little-dressmaker-around-the-corner" make up dresses that she designs herself—and some of them are so successful that they simply have to be sketched for you! The one I did today is such a love! Mine was made in black crepe, with ecru lace ruffles and a wide pink suede belt, and you have no idea how lovely it is! I have a black suede belt, too, that makes it less afternoonish, and turns it into an ideal dress to wear for say, luncheon. Couldn't you make this yourself? The skirt is simple, having just two circular godets in either side for fullness.

* * * *

We know you're enjoying Dare's weekly fashion letter. It always appears in The Sunday Washington Post.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 6 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from noon to 1:30 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:45 p. m.

Astrological influences on this date are favorable the first half of the day. Take Kipling's advice and get your hardest work done before lunch and let the rest of the day look after itself. Those who have the money to invest are advised to keep clear of speculation, and better still to wait!

The child born on this February 6 will be freedom-loving, mischief-loving and pleasure-loving. It will have a live spirit, an active mind and a keen sense of humor. It will be frank and straightforward in both its speech and actions, and it will make more friends than enemies through life.

You are one of the world's silent people, and you have the reputation, like many silent people, of having strong wisdom penned up somewhere within you. If your tongue is not always busy, your eyes and mind are. You know how to keep your finger out of the pie and your tongue in your cheek. When you do say anything, however, it is usually worth listening to, and your words show thought. To attend to your own business and to let others do the same is your policy in life.

Nothing makes you more miserable than indecision, and no grass grows under your feet when once a decision is made, and prompt action follows. Life to you is not all work and all play, and although you do not necessarily make a lot of noise about your fun, you have it nevertheless. You have a dry sense of humor and you are more of a chuckler than laughter.

You have refined tastes, and are very particular about your person. The best is none too good for you, and quality means more to you than quantity, be it food, clothes, books, theaters or anything else. You are an intelligent reader and a varied one. You are very devoted to nature and passionately fond of animals, especially dogs and horses.

You will make of your home all that the word implies—it will be a place of happiness and enjoyment to both you and your friends.

Successful people born February 6: James Winchester, a founder of Memphis, Tenn.

Aaron Burr, Vice President under Jefferson.

George J. Gould, capitalist.

Elizabeth William Champney, author.

Sir Henry Irving, actor.

FRANCES M'DONALD

She Finds Real Men Rare.

ARE men more mercenary than they used to be? Grace believes they are and that real men are "rarer than hen's teeth" which is rare enough. If men are mercenary is it the fault of such women as Grace describes? Personally we believe a man is a man or he is not and if he is the real article he has his own ideas and no amount of pressure can change him. If Grace is right then the future is a dreary waste, for what would the world be like without the hustling worrying he-man who brings home the bacon and asks no further reward than to be able to work for the ones who are his very own?

Dear Francis McDonald: I will admit I am a bit soured but would like to be heard just the same. My pet peeve is the mercenary man of today. Talk about girls being out to get. The first thing a man wants to know today is the financial standing of the family. A business girl has small chance today against the girl who can supply the car to go about, and who can also promise life free of financial worry.

Last night a man I was out with made a telling remark. We were discussing a man we both know. When I remarked that he was lots of fun, my escort said "Why not? He had the good sense to find a nice soft future for himself and is thoroughly enjoying it." He explained that the man married for money. We got to discussing it. And he said that "if a man had no money he should at least have brains enough not to marry a woman who was in the same boat." Now I ask you is he a man or what?

For two years I went with a man who made violent love to me. He did not actually speak of marriage—or did so vaguely. Then a fond mama saw him and decided to buy him for her lisping daughter who was all but an idiot. Even in high school she could not get a boy friend—and high school boys are not particular—especially when the girl has a car and all the fixings. However, in six months mama had landed her fish. Week-end trips that saved his board bill, lavish gifts, the use of a car, no checks to be paid, one grand time without expense. They are married. He does not even pretend to work. His mother-in-law adores him. Now I contend the world is full of women today who are bent upon making it easy for a man to be a tramp and beat his way gracefully through life.

Where once fathers asked a man what his prospects were, the reverse is almost true today. The mothers will go to any length to let a man know that nothing will be expected of him whatever except that he behave and live at home on the girl's money. I know a dozen men in love with business girls who have no idea on earth of ever marrying the girls they love. They are looking around and they will not have to look long or far. If a man dances, can wear clothes and speaks decent English he qualifies. I purposely omit the question of morals which matter not in the least. I am getting disgusted. And I blame the women who not only pay their own way but now are ready to pay the man's way, too. What is the answer?

GRACE.

YOUR NAME WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

The family name "Day" (also spelled "Dey") has come down to us from two quite different sources. It is generally the modern form of the Old English "dæge," which originally had the general meaning of "farm-servant," but which later took on the specific meaning of "dairy-servant." In some English counties and in certain parts of Scotland "day" is still used to signify a dairy maid. In a few cases "Day" represents a shortened form of "David." The personal name "David" is ultimately of Hebrew origin, and means "beloved." A certain Richilda la Deye and a Willelmus Dey are mentioned in a fourteenth century English record.

The family name "Thayer" is now quite common in the United States and Canada, but is relatively rare in England. It is a modern contracted form of the Anglo Saxon personal name "Theodhere," which may be translated "national army." A certain Anthony Thayer is mentioned in a London marriage license of the year 1605.

The family name "Bridgeman" is one of the relatively few names whose original meanings are clearly indicated by their present forms. Its general meaning is "he who lives at the bridge," but there is evidence that in some cases it had the specific meaning of "the toll collector at a bridge." A certain Johannes Brigeman is mentioned in an English document of the year 1379.

The family name "Mommsen" is of German origin, and means "the son of Mummo." "Mummo" was an old personal name meaning "thought," "desire and "longing."

The personal name "Eva" is ultimately of Hebrew origin, and means "life."

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

JERUSALEM CHERRIES AND FUCHSIAS.

SO many letters come to my desk each month asking me how to keep the fruit and leaves from falling from a Jerusalem cherry. The secret of the care of this plant, which in some ways is so desirable and in other ways rather undesirable, is to keep the plant, while indoors, in a light, very sunny place, but also a very cool one.

The moment we place the plant in a warm place it begins to drop both fruit and foliage. The usual experience is to have the plant do very well and then, just when we are congratulating ourselves that all is well with it, drop its leaves and even its berries.

This is not a matter of watering (the plant should have a daily drink); it is heat, rather than a lack of water, that causes the plant to lose its fruit. It also demands plenty of fresh air. A rather cool but sunny glass-inclosed porch suits it very well.

This last week I have received several complaints regarding the fuchsia. Usually these notes reported that the plants were losing both flowers and leaves. This is, of course, a disappointment, but it is not a hopeless condition. In the future keep the plant well watered. Five hours of bone-dry soil will cause the leaves to drop and the buds to shrivel. In a warm room this happens very easily. The only way to avoid it is to make it a rule to water your fuchsia every day whether you think it needs it or not.

Another condition which will have much the same effect on the plant is to permit it for even a half hour to be in a draft. A strong draft or a sudden change of temperature will immediately cause the foliage to fall. The fuchsia does not require a very high temperature, but it does require an even one.

Another requirement of the fuchsia is sun. It may live in semishade, but is not apt to grow much, nor will it bloom. A southern or eastern window suits it best. If you have only north windows, better not attempt to grow either a fuchsia or a Jerusalem cherry.

HOW DOES YOUR CYCLAMEN GROW?

If it is not producing flowers as you think it should, why not try to find the cause? A few small changes in the way you care for it may give it new life. If you would like the leaflet on cyclamens, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to

JANE LESLIE KIFT,
Care of The Washington Post.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

SPAGHETTI, TOMATO AND FRANKFURTS.

(United States Department of Agriculture.)

Almost everybody likes frankfurts. They are easy to cook, especially for a large number of people, so they are often used for picnics, community suppers and similar gatherings. A good winter dish in which frankfurts are used is suggested by the United States Department of Agriculture. The quantity given in the recipe below is suitable for a family of about six persons.

2 quarts water.
1 teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons chopped onion.
1 pound frankfurts.
1 cup canned tomato puree diluted with 2 cups water or 2 cups tomato sauce.
2 tablespoons butter.

Cook the spaghetti in the water for about 30 minutes or until tender. Drain well and mix with the tomato. Cook the onion in the butter until lightly browned and mix with the spaghetti and tomato. Wash the frankfurts, barely cover with boiling water, and simmer for ten minutes. Put the spaghetti and tomato on a hot platter, lay the hot cooked frankfurts on top, garnish with cress or chopped parsley and serve at once.

The spaghetti mixture may be placed in a greased casserole, the cooked frankfurts laid over the top, covered and heated until the sauce bubbles. Serve from the dish.

The New Jelleff's

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

WITH Roxy and His Gang and the New York Grand Opera Company hitting town on the same day, Washington had its share of song birds yesterday.

* * * *

The New York Grand Opera Company, of course, will continue at the National until Sunday night—and, if Washington takes kindly to this organization, there is a promise of return engagements every seven weeks.

* * * *

Speaking of return engagements, Mr. Stoddard Taylor, manager of the Belasco Theater, is strutting about town in high glee over the break of good fortune he got just the other day—the bringing back of "The Bird in Hand" company, an all-English cast playing John Drinkwater's comedy. This is the first time this season such an occurrence has taken place. The return engagement starts next Monday night.

* * * *

Incidentally, there is a beautiful young lady in the "Bird in Hand" cast. Her name is Daphne Warren Wilson. Judges of beauty award her first place among the visiting engenues. It so happens that Miss Wilson, upon her first visit to the American Capital, fell in love with the old town—and as a result of the mutual attraction—Washington to Miss Wilson and Miss Wilson to Washington—there is talk of her coming back as a member of the National Theater Players.

* * * *

The National Theater Players start their seventh spring and summer season on Easter Monday. With the first four days of this week dark, Mr. S. E. Cochran, manager of the National and originator of the Players, dashed over to New York to sign talent on the dotted line. It is being bruited about that he will soon announce the name of his leading lady—probably in The Sunday Post.

* * * *

While the Belasco has the Drinkwater comedy, the National boasts, next week, of displaying for the first time on any stage the first play of another English dramatist, Mr. Roland Pertwee. This is the play called "Heat Wave," and Oliver Saylor, expert script reader, claims that here is a touch of playwrighting comparable to the best turned out by Somerset Maugham. "In fact," says Mr. Saylor, enthusiastically, "if you shut your eyes and listen to this rich, rolling diagolue, you'd believe this MS. came from the pen of Maugham. This is of course, if you didn't see the name of Roland Pertwee on the program."

* * * *

"In the Best of Families," that exceedingly flat farce that forced so many questionable guffaws in the Belasco Theater during the week of its try-out, at last reached New York—and what New York City, via its critical fraternity, did to "In the Best of Families" was, in the vernacular, nobody's business. It begins to look as if the day of the dirty play is over.

* * * *

In fact, there are signs on the horizon that the theater is cleaning house. Several outstanding vaudeville performers—our own Ann Suter amongst them—were recently ordered by the moguls of show business to go easy with innuendo and all that sort of thing. It means that the public has become fed up. Hail, then, the day of clean comedy—sparkling and wholesome.

* * * *

Washington's own thespians—stars in the various community drama guilds—are preparing to enter some of their plays in the annual one-act play contest of the National Little Theater Tournament, to be held in May, competing for the David Belasco Cup.

Coached by Vernye Barrett and Jessie McElhinney, the cast will include Mae Norwood, Irene Bartlett, Aline Robbins, Iva Smith, Helen Lyons, Alfred Barrett, Arthur Wise, Raymond Stanley, Isaac Avery and Mildred Gott.

Washington Youth Honored.

WORK ON BRIDGE

CONTRACT BRIDGE.

The above hand recently was played at a large number of tables in a Duplicate Progressive Contract game. South, holding presumably six tricks in Spades, would bid two Spades if he believed in differentiating between a six-trick and a weaker holding; he would bid one Spade if he did not consider it desirable to show the strength of his hand accurately; he would pass if he did not believe in bidding with strength in only one suit.

At the tables where South passed, West, North and East did the same—East somewhat unwillingly; but he figured that with a partner too weak to bid in the second-hand position, there would not be strength enough in the combined hands to make game, and his short weak Spades made him feel that it would be safer to "chuck" the deal.

At the tables where South bid one Spade, West passed, North bid two or three Spades (he had strength enough for three), and the game-bid was reached without difficulty. Where South started with two Spades, North bid four. He had four raisers; viz., four cards of partner's suit with a singleton in the hand, Ace of Hearts 1, Ace of Diamonds 1, Diamond singleton 1; and he would have had the strength to raise a two-bid to four with only three raisers.

Played at four Spades, some Wests led the Jack of trumps and others the Queen of Diamonds. However, the opening lead did not affect the result; dummy was able to ruff three of South's Diamonds, South ruffing North's Hearts to obtain the lead, and consequently Declarer succeeded in making eleven tricks—much better than passing the hand out.

The Life Story of Gen. Wood

By HERMANN HAGEDORN

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Gen. Wood was in the hospital in Paris almost three weeks.

"Americans in Paris have kept my room full of flowers," the general wrote Mrs. Wood, "which I send, as soon as I safely can, to some of the poor chaps here who are but wrecks of what were once men. You must see this war to understand it—and we are so slow! If we could have come promptly, who can tell what? * * * My arm is still a bit stiff and heavy, but they tell me I have made a recovery such as is only found in the very young, all of which has a very pleasing sound."

On the 20th of February Wood went to Chaumont.

The atmosphere at the general headquarters of the American Expeditionary Forces proved oppressive. Recognising possibly that Europeans would expect American soldiers to be careless in posture and dress, Pershing had clearly determined that he would go to the other extreme. Everything about himself, his staff, his headquarters, was amazingly precise and military. A French general, coming from an interview with Pershing, exclaimed, "Mon Dieu! You Americans make me feel like—what is it?—a Boy Scout!"

Bare Welcome Given.

Pershing's staff gave Wood a mere welcome. But the atmosphere was charged with electricity. The presence of Wood in France had from the first been an irritation to Pershing. He had not wanted Wood to come over and had told Gen. Peyton March before the latter's return to the United States to assume the duties of chief of staff that Wood was naturally insubordinate and cited instances in Wood's record. If Wood were sent to France, he had told March, he, Pershing, would send him back under the general authority which had been given him.

Since then Pershing had heard rumors that the French had asked that Wood be sent to relieve him. The rumors, it happened, were false. But here Wood was lauded and lionized by the British and French who made no secret of their desire that he command the American forces. The reports that came from Paris of Wood's interviews with Petain, Joffre, Clemenceau and others who had not bothered with the other American generals who had come to France on tours of inspection, peeved Pershing, moreover, and disturbed him. What he might have asked was passing between the allied governments and his own? The report of Lloyd George's query to Medill McCormick suggesting frankly that Wood was needed in Washington or on the Supreme War Council in Paris rankled in his mind. Pershing, in fact, was bitterly jealous of Wood, and when a second-rate Paris magazine printed Wood's picture with a captain describing him as "America's greatest fighter," Pershing felt that he had been personally affronted. The question whether Wood's accident entitled him to a wound-stripe was the subject of grave discussion at headquarters.

Wood Finds Tables Turned.

On his arrival at headquarters Wood went straight to Pershing's office. They were together alone a half hour or more, but what they said to each other they did not subsequently reveal.

The tables had been turned since those days four years previous when Wood had been the one who was in the seat of power and Pershing had been lavish in his protestations of devotion and admiration; those days when, in response to Pershing's earnest pleading, Wood had given him the chance by which he had risen to power.

Those protestations Wood had, in fact, never taken too seriously. There had been friction between them in the Philippines and Pershing had not forgotten that Wood had not officially recommended him for promotion from captain to brigadier general.

Wood had had an excellent reason for not doing it. He was at the time supporting Scott for the brigadier-generalcy. Scott was an older man, who, Wood felt, had rendered service that should be rewarded, and he did not wish to weaken his support of Scott by recommending Pershing for promotion at the same time. The fact was that when Roosevelt had hesitated about giving Pershing his great jump, it had been Wood whose friendly urging had resolved the President's doubts. Pershing, no doubt, had known nothing of that, and had forgotten, perhaps, the letter which Brig. Gen. Wood had written one hot July night in Santiago, recommending Lieut. Pershing to the good graces of his superiors; but he could scarcely have forgotten that Wood had been responsible for his appointment of governor of the Moro province.

Views in Army Differ.

The conflict between Wood and Pershing went deeper than mere personal antagonism. Their views of what the American army should be differed fundamentally. To Pershing—brought up on the Prussian theorists, Clausewitz, Bernhardi, Treitschke, Von de Goltz—the army was a machine, to be used as man, the intelligent, uses any other machine for his own purposes. To Wood, the Army was, first and foremost, an aggregation of human beings—gallant, lovable, wonderful human beings—who might be made craven or glorious according to the leadership given them. To take them into battle, to make them fight to gain a position; by means of them to win a campaign was only one of a general's functions. That was essential; but equally important was to make these men in his charge true and devoted citizens of the republic, to give them a vision of their country, to show them what they were fighting for.

Pershing drove men, Wood led. Pershing used the bodies of his men to carry strongholds, Wood kindled the spirits of his so that they became not only better soldiers but better citizens.

Suspicions and Intrigues.

At Chaumont, Wood and Pershing were both on edge, conscious of the barrier which the suspicions and intrigues of others had thrown up between them. Wood, who, in similar situations, had always found frankness the best medicine and customarily demanded from his own subordinates complete freedom of utterance, told of what he had learned on the French and British fronts. His observations were received coldly. On the question of the amalgamation of the training of the American and allied troops, moreover, Wood and Pershing differed sharply. Wood, among his own, was not used to stepping softly, out of respect to the sensibilities of his superiors, or glossing over what seemed to him the truth. He made no attempts to conceal his conviction that the American high command in France was stubbornly refusing to profit by the experience of the British and French through four years of warfare. His candor in the court atmosphere reverberated awesomely.

The next day Wood went along the American front.

"I found, as elsewhere during my trip," Wood wrote in his diary, "indications of an avoidance on the part of our officers of the use of French instructors and an inclination to rather belittle French standards. * * *

"I found the front very poorly organized. There was no air service whatever. * * * An occasional French plane comes over and attempts a reconnaissance on the German side, but is invariably driven back and very promptly by German planes. What is going on behind the German line no one on this front knows. *

"There is no wireless telephone and but little wireless telegraph connection, with the rear and all wires are carried in a single trench and may be cut by one shell. There is no arrangement for liaison by pigeons or special liaison by trained runners. On a front of seven and one half kilometers and a distance of two kilometers between the forward observation line and the line of main resistance, there are only two communicating trenches and these are exactly registered on by the Germans each day. This means that, in case of an attack on this sector, neither of them can be used without terrific losses. There are no strong points organized between the advanced line and the line of main resistance. * * *

"The whole impression was one of more or less helplessness. * * * The division is absolutely without sound or range-finding apparatus or aerial service, and for all of these is dependent upon the French."

Countermanded by Pershing.

Wood told Pershing that he would do what he could to make the authorities at home realize the needs of the army in France. Pershing, as Gen. March subsequently reported, answered that he was to do nothing of the sort. It would, moreover, "not be wise for him to go about talking to politicians."

Wood's original orders had provided for his return to the United States by way of England. The night before his departure from Chaumont for Paris, Harbord came to his room. "General, your orders have been changed. Gen. Pershing has decided that you are needed with your division and you will return to the United States at once."

Wood asked the orders to be reconsidered. He had some personal errands to attend to in London; he wanted to see St. Joe Strachey and his friend of the Spanish War days, Sir Arthur Lee, and Lloyd George had expressed a wish to see him. In any event, he could catch a steamer in London which would get him back to the United States earlier than any transport sailing from Bordeaux. Pershing refused to change the orders. Wood asked whether he might visit an aviation training camp on the way to Bordeaux. Pershing agreed, but insisted that Wood send his report to him, and not to Washington. There was no question here who wore four stars and who wore two.

Wood was given no reason why his orders had been changed, but he did not question that the arrival of American newspapers rich on comments on Lloyd George's query as to where the Americans had exiled Wood had something to do with it.

Pershing was not present when Wood left Chaumont the next morning. He had taken some medicine, his aid reported, was indisposed and begged to be excused. Wood was sardonically amused at this echo of the Rajah Muda and the boils.

To Gen. Bullard, whom he met near Chaumont, Wood said, "I am going back to the United States. I shall not be in it."

Pershing Writes Note.

After Wood's departure, Pershing wrote a confidential memorandum to Gen. March, which he did not even show to his own chief of staff, Gen. Harbord. Into it he poured all the bitterness of a man consumed with petty jealousy and apprehension of his own security. Wood, he wrote, was "the same insubordinate man" he had always been. He had done "a lot of talking" around Paris; he had been visited by discontented officers; he had had his picture in the papers; a prominent American widow had suggested him as a corps commander. Heinous offenses, indeed! Was it not high time that "meddling political generals" were put where they could do no harm? Wood's physical condition alone would warrant his retirement, and any honest medical board would declare him incapacitated "at a glance." The sight of a lame man going about among the allied armies "posing as America's greatest," must have been something other than inspiring to the allied leaders.

In view of the fact that Lloyd George, French and Robertson; Clemenceau, Cambon, Brugere, Joffre, Petain had all sought Wood's advice and pleaded for his services in France, gave that particular expression of Pershing's green demon a comic aspect.

In case, Pershing concluded, the present should prove, for political reasons, not the best time to dispose of Wood, another occasion, no doubt, would arise. And on that hope the amazing "memorandum" closed. (Pershing to March, February 24, 1918. "New York World," December 14, 1930.)

It would scarcely have been unnatural if, as those words were being penned, the almost fulsome expressions of Pershing's admiration and loyalty which were in Wood's files had grasped and fluttered in dismay.

French Want Retention.

The French leaders were reluctant to see Wood go. At Gen. Brugere's table Wood had a second conference with Petain.

"He expressed great regret at my return home at this time," Wood wrote in his diary, "said he had hoped very much that I would be left here. He expressed a very clear understanding of the capacity of our high command and gave his own opinions. Said he was doing all he could to bring about the establishment of a condition which would result in better training methods. I talked to him very frankly, explaining the difficulties of our situation."

That afternoon Wood went with Brugere to call on President Poincare. Afterward he wrote in his diary:

"He was very keen to have our troops come over as rapidly as possible and very much interested in the establishment of a normal method of training and cooperation with the French forces. They have already been very much worried by Gen. Pershing's lack of willingness to have combined training and very much pleased that it has now been arranged. It has been arranged on practically the lines which I discussed with Gen. Petain at Compiegne. Apparently Gen. Brugere and he has had a very frank talk on the general situation, and Gen. Petain had evidently gone directly to the president from the luncheon and laid before him all we had talked about.

"The president expressed his regret that I was not remaining and hoped I would soon come back. He said he hoped the situation here would be put frankly before the people at home that they might understand the gravity of the situation."

England had asked for Wood. France wanted him. Now Italy sent its appeal. Would Gen. Wood be willing to go to Italy as head of a mission or in command of troops? Wood said that if the President or Gen. Pershing asked him to go to Italy in any capacity he would be glad to go, but he could, of course, take no initiative in the matter. The Italian government acted promptly. From the American Ambassador in Rome, Thomas Nelson Page, Wood received an urgent appeal to come.

Immediately after Wood's return from Chaumont, William, his aide, received a peremptory telephone message to come to the American headquarters in Paris. A cablegram, it seemed, had come from Washington making inquiries regarding "Gen. Wood's request" to be sent to Italy as head of an American mission. Williams explained hotly that Wood had taken no initiative in the matter whatsoever.

As explained to you over the phone," Wood telegraphed the adjutant general at Chaumont, "I was informed that I would probably be invited. I stated in each instance that if ordered I should be very glad indeed to go, but that I could take no steps to initiate the move; that invitation must come from the Italian government through regular channels and be approved by the supreme military authorities here. I make no request. If ordered, I shall be very glad to go."

Washington Sends Message.

From the adjutant general in Washington came a message to Pershing:

"Cable 38 from Bliss states that at Gen. Wood's request the Italian supreme command would be happy to have him go to Italian front. The Secretary of War directs that Gen. Wood carry out his original order and return to this country when he has completed his inspection in France, as his services are needed with his division."

Pershing answered, next day:

"With reference to paragraph 9 of your cablegram 837, request presented to me 26th and disapproved. Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood had already been asked to return to the United States at once via Bordeaux."

Two minds with but a single thought.

It was "expected," the papers furthermore reported, that, as a consequence of Baker's visit, Wood would be made lieutenant general and given an army corps. The innocent soul who brought that "expectation" to paper clearly should have read paragraph 9 of cablegram 837.

Meanwhile, Wood, having been hurried to Bordeaux, in order to lose no time in rejoining his division, was forced to twiddle his thumbs there for a week. He arrived in the United States about ten days later than he would have arrived if he had gone by way of England. However, the world had once more been preserved for democracy.

KING JAMES II CAUSED THE DUBLIN MINT TO ISSUE A NUMBER OF BASE COINS DURING HIS REIGN. THE METAL USED IN THESE COINS WAS KNOWN TO THE IRISH AS "UIM BOS"—PRONOUNCED OOM-BUG. FROM THIS—AND THE SMALL VALUE OF THE COINS—WE DERIVE OUR WORD "HUMBUG."

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood—With nearly a score of pictures featuring the gangster theme released, or soon to be, one wonders if they will meet the fate of the musicals.

JACK HOLT

The success of the first "filmusicals" was so tremendous that Hollywood couldn't make enough of them. The mad scramble to put them out brought over production, and suddenly the public wearied of them.

The fast-moving "Alibi," one of the first gangster talkies, and probably the best, led the present vogue. But "Alibi" can hardly be held responsible for the new development. That credit—if any—probably belongs to the gangsters themselves.

The movies, somehow, have given the gangster a romantic halo that ill becomes the real big-city bad man. And Hollywood is cashing in on that false glamour.

"Kidding the Bad Man."

Only two of the newer gang pictures treat the subject semihumorously. One is Jack Oakie's "Gang Buster," and the other is El Brendel's "Mr. Lemon of Orange." Incidentally El plays a dual role—a gangster and his own Swedish character.

John Gilbert's latest, "Gentlemen's Fate," said to be his best in some time, brings him into a new locale, the underworld. Richard Barthelmess is presently making a film based on the activities and death of a Chicago reporter who meddled in gangland politics.

By the Dozen.

Among some of the others are "Little Caesar," with Edward Robinson in the title role, said to have been suggested by the life of the "big boy" of Chicago gangdom.

Had not Clara Bow been too busy with a little drama of her own, she would have been costarred with Gary Cooper in a gang drama called "City Lights." Instead, Sylvia Sidney, a newcomer from the stage, will be with Gary.

Jack Holt has been in two pictures dealing with the subject, "The Last Parade" and "The Squealer." Others include "The Secret Six," "Skyline" and "Gun Smoke." At least eight others are in active preparation, and it is safe to say as many more are being considered.

It is not improbable that if production of these pictures continues at its present rate, the market—you and I—soon will be saturated.

Kiwanis to Expend $1,600 Through Chest

The Washington Kiwanis Club accepted yesterday the resignation of George H. Winslow, retiring because of illness, as secretary-treasurer after more than ten years of service. Resolutions praising Mr. Winslow were adopted at a luncheon-meeting in the Washington Hotel. He will remain a member of the club.

A budget for 1931, calling for $13,175 was presented by Claude H. Woodward. The largest item, $3,800, is for the organization's orthopedic and welfare work. M. O. Chance, president, announced $1,600 would be expended through the Community Chest.

Money for Fine Given To Man to "Fix It Up"

Robberies nowadays are frequent, but Stanley Parker, of Crittenden street northwest near Fourteenth street, went down to the court to pay the fine for L. E. Daniels, who was being arraigned on an intoxication charge.

Later Parker explained to Judge Gus A. Schuldt he had given the money to a man who said he "would fix things up."

Judge Schuldt released Daniels on his personal bond after hearing the story.

Kotex deodorizes
... one of the many reasons you should demand this sanitary pad

DAINTY women appreciate the fact that Kotex deodorizes thoroughly. They like, too, the way it is shaped to fit inconspicuously and the soothing, lasting softness that differentiates Kotex from ordinary sanitary pads.

You will feel secure, safe—once you adopt this modern protection. Kotex is highly absorbent—five times more than surgical cotton. And it absorbs over a larger area, gives you greater protection.

You can wear it on either side, with no fear of embarrassment, with the very same efficiency.

Our leading hospitals, taking the very greatest precautions in all sanitary measures, insist upon Kotex for their women patients. Try Kotex—for your health's sake. It is, of course, disposable.

"I unhesitatingly recommend AMOCO-GAS," says MR. THOS. T. MOTT

Washington Distributor for HUPMOBILE

Mr. Thos. T. Mott, President, Mott Motors, Inc., 1520 14th St. N.W., Washington Distributor for Hupmobile.

MUCH of the credit for Hupmobile's popularity in Washington and nearby territory is due to the interest which Mr. Mott, President of the Washington distributing organization, takes in the cars he sells after the sale is completed.

One point which Mr. Mott always stresses is the use of only the best motor fuel in order to obtain the most satisfactory results.

In line with that policy, read the following statement:

"I have always found Amoco-Gas a most satisfactory and economical motor fuel and unhesitatingly recommend it to Hupmobile buyers. The better the car, the better the motor fuel it deserves."

Thos. T. Mott.

For economy, for better performance, for longer, more satisfactory service from your car—follow the lead of men who know motors. Drive on Amoco-Gas.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

ROCHESTER, MINN.

ROCHESTER, Minn., is a city of 20,000. They have an exceptionally good health department, a public sentiment, and a medical leadership that makes it possible to get things done. These smaller places should have better health protection than is possible for larger places, but as a rule they do not.

In Rochester the garbage is fed to hogs at a profit to the city and without nuisance, there is sewage disposal, a good water supply, the milk well protected, and the children of school age have more than the usual safeguards thrown around them. Furthermore, conditions are such that clinical research among the school children is possible, thus securing information for themselves and making it available for others.

Dr. K. B. Geddie, of that city, reports that in the last five years there have been but 30 cases of diphtheria in this great crossroads city. None of them should have died with the disease under modern methods of treatment. Twenty thousand children exposed for five years is equivalent to 100,000 exposed for one year. Of these 30 cases 7 were contracted in other places and 3 results from contacts with known cases. Twenty developed their disease from contacts with undiscovered cases.

Examination of 883 school children up to 18 years of age, in four classifications grouped by ages, showed that 32 were negative by a Schick test. The groups that had had their tonsils removed were found to be about as subject to diphtheria as the others were, at least so far as the Schick test showed. The conclusion drawn was that removing a child's tonsils did not raise his resistance to diphtheria. It is claimed that removal of bad tonsils makes it more difficult for the bacillus to get a foothold in the throat. On that point Dr. Geddie's study threw no light. It has also been claimed that removal of the tonsils of a carrier will cure the carrier state. That was also a point untouched by the study. The only point which appeared to be proved was that removal of tonsils, whatever good it may do otherwise, does not increase immunity to diphtheria.

A DANGEROUS DRUG.

Mrs. E. V. C. writes:

1. Is digitalis a dangerous drug? I have been taking it as a heart regulator for the last two months. Since I started taking it my feet swell.

2. Does it affect the general health and circulation of the blood?

REPLY.

1. It is. Almost all useful drugs may be harmful or dangerous. Digitalis is the best single remedy we have in the treatment of heart disease, but, used improperly, it does harm.

2. The swelling of your feet is the result of the heart trouble and not of the remedy. If you have other evidence of unbalanced blood circulation probably heart disease and not digitalis causes it.

PUS DISCHARGE FROM EAR.

E. M. writes: Twenty years ago I had two operations on my right ear for an abscess. The ear has discharged pus ever since. Is there any danger in this condition? Can discharge be stopped?

REPLY.

The chances are that the ear condition has done all the harm it will cause. It should have been attended to before this.

EASTERN FIVE SEEKS BIG LEAD IN SERIES TODAY

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Having seen something in the papers to the effect that Bobby Jones, the great amphibian of golf, who is neither amateur nor pro but something of both, intends to enact a series of moving pictures illustrating all that is best in the game, I wonder if there is not a chance for me to make a deal for a companion or rival series to illustrate all that is worst.

It might be necessary for me to prove my claim to this job but I am willing to undergo any reasonable test against any field at a distance of, say, one hole, which I believe would be sufficient to prove everything. After the third or fourth hole, I sometimes slide a little off my game and have a tendency to catch hold of one and smack it one beautiful paste, due to pressing.

The field, of course, should be limited to persons having handicaps of 35 or more, and as far as I am concerned it would be all right to include ladies as I am rather bashful, and if there is any time when I am a little worse than others it is when there are ladies around, particularly those slim, rope-colored blondes who come along behind, go through and smack them a furlong after just one fiddle-and-hitch. However, I am pretty consistent so I do not demand this and any contestant who thinks I might have an unfair advantage has my permission to make it strictly a stag affair.

35 OR MORE HANDICAPS NEEDED

Not only medal scores but form in execution should count in the championship, for, as is so often remarked of football games where Harvard licks Yale or vice versa, my score, though it runs into five figures, does not tell the complete story. That shot with the midiron where I shatter my own flask with the club-head on the back swing is only one shot, but the skinny numeral would not convey the picture, and the sum of my putts, while it might be taken for the Clearing House statement, gives no idea of the originality and tremendous action of the stance and stroke.

After I have vanquished the field, including a man from Chicago by the name of Woodruff, who challenged me last summer when I lost so easily that it was practically no contest, there might be some difficulty about the matter of sound effects to go with this series. Mr. Jones, I understand, intends to remark a few appropriate phrases before and after each of the demonstration shots for the films, but I have a feeling that the advance of liberalism has not yet gone far enough to permit me freedom of expression for the remarks which I would be likely to let fly. For this, however, we could get a comic artist to draw some balloons full of dingbats, asterisks and expressions like "Well, I'll be a ——" and "What the ——"

COMPARISON OF GAMES URGED

Not meaning to knock a rival in this field, I must say that I can not see what the Warner Bros. expect to use for their appeal to the customers in this Jones series because improvement is not achieved by telling people what to do, but what they must not do. All the moral lessons of the dramatic moving pictures are taught by presenting temptation, sin and retribution, not by stories of virtuous happiness, and Mr. Jones' perfect golf would be nothing but one continual happy fadeout, a little of which goes a very long way, as is shown in the fact that these shots occur only once per drama. It might be a good idea for me to shoot most of the footage and then, for the climax, let Bobby Jones step up for just one brief shot of perfection.

It makes no difference to me what they do because my act is such a picture of struggle, mystery and failure that almost any runner-up in a club tournament could step up to the tee just before the finish and supply the contrast of the happy ending, but Jones makes the game look so easy that his stuff alone is certain to set the customers yawning.

I have watched Mr. Jones shoot a

Leland, Sprint Star, May Enter Stanford

Fort Worth, Tex., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Cy Leland, Texas Christian University football and track star and one of the fastest dash men in the country, may enter Stanford University within the next few days to finish his college work.

Plans of Texas Christian for developing one of the greatest relay teams in the country this spring, with Leland as one of the baton carriers, have gone awry, influencing Leland to make inquiries as to the entrance at Stanford. The sprinter long has contemplated doing graduate work at one of the Pacific Coast universities.

Speed King Not Satisfied That Mark Is Best for Car.

he had not been able to set a higher record. He blamed the unevenness of the beach and poor visibility for his failure to travel faster.

"I am not satisfied with the record, he said, after he had torn himself away from a huge crowd of spectators and racing officials who swarmed out onto the beach to congratulate him.

"The car has lots more speed in it and I am a bit disappointed that conditions prevented me from going faster.

"The unevenness of the beach held down my speed and the visibility was so poor that I could not do better. At no time during my runs could I see more than 300 or 350 yards because of the haze that hung over the course. My car was picking up speed all the time and I would have gone much faster than I did if conditions had been better."

May Seek Other Records.

Campbell declined to state whether he would attempt later to raise his own record or let it stand. He previously has said, however, he planned to make an assault on the record for five kilometers and possibly for five miles before he returned to England.

Among the first to reach Campbell's side to congratulate him after his record triumph were his aunt, Mrs. Ethel Cunbers, and his niece, Miss Yvonne Middleton. They kissed him. When the crowd rushed out onto the beach, Campbell was nearly swept from his feet. He shook hands with several scores of them and after posing for news photographers, broke away from the wild demonstration and drove back to his hotel in his passenger car.

In making his first run today, Campbell took a five and one-half-mile flying start, one and one-half miles more than previous record contenders ever took.

The trim, low slung car quickly gained momentum and as he threw the machine into high gear after a two or three mile run, it fairly shot ahead with a tremendous burst of speed. Traveling faster and faster, the car first came in view of spectators in the grandstand when it entered the officially measured mile.

Car Rides Course With Ease.

With a mighty roar it flashed by the timing tower, riding the course with ease, and quickly disappeared in the heavy mist as it sped on down to the south end of the beach.

Then, without waiting to change tires or inspect his machine, the driver ran up the course on his return dash, made from south to north. He stopped at the south end only long enough to turn around.

After completing his second run, official timers announced a new record had been hung up and the crowd cheered loudly.

Climbing out of his huge car at the north end of the beach, he then jumped in a midget, four-cylinder racing car which he had brought with him from England and made two runs over the beach in the hope of establishing a new record for machines with a displacement of less than 45 cubic inches, but failed by six miles an hour. The record for that class car is 87.76 miles an hour.

G. U. VICTOR, 30-29, OVER HOPKINS

Scores by McHale and Shea Decide; Tech Beats Frosh.

GEORGETOWN and Johns Hopkins, neither of which is going anywhere in college basketball this season, staged one of those rare, bitter, mauling, heart-throbbing games last night in Tech Gym that left a small audience in a near state of hysteria after 40 thrill-packed minutes. Georgetown won, 30 to 29, thereby ending a losing streak of three games.

It was a calmly-tossed free shot by Jack McHale that proved the deciding point, but a marathon field goal by Bill Shea, that broke a 27-to-27 deadlock, was the shining act of the evening. Shea flipped this one with hurried aim from a difficult angle in side court when all but two minutes ha dexpired.

McHale shortly thereafter came through from the free throw line to stretch Georgetown's margin to three points. Then C. Kelly pegged a fielder for Hopkins in a frantic last minute.

Blue Jays Lead At Half, 17-16.

The Blue Jays, thanks to the shooting of their lean, red-haired center, Brooks, held a 17-16 advantage at intermission. Brooks during the first half collected 9 points.

Georgetown's end in the first chapter was held up mainly by Capt. Walter Morris, who dropped in four long shots—two from dead center court—and bore the burden of the passing. Twice the score was tied and twice the Hoyas forged ahead only to see Brooks sink a goal from scrimmage 30 seconds before the half. Dillon's pot early in the second session sent Georgetown ahead at 20-19. The going was frenzied until the finish.

Led by Russell, Tech High decisively defeated Georgetown's Freshmen, 28-16, in the preliminary. Russell's brilliant shooting accounted for 19 points.

Four Contests Listed For Virginia Athletes

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 5.—University of Virginia athletic teams will engage in four important contests tomorrow, only one of which is listed for Charlottesville.

Fresh from its 40-to-22 victory over William and Mary, the Cavalier swimming team will play host to the Duke University natators here in Memorial Gymnasium pool tomorrow afternoon, starting at 4 o'clock. Four days later, on February 11, the swimmers will meet the Washington and Lee team at Lexington.

Minus the services of Bobby Golstein, sensational featherweight, who is suffering from an injured hand, the Virginia boxing team will be the guest of the University of North Carolina mitt men at Chapel Hill tomorrow night, while the varsity and freshman tracksters will make their debut against Washington and Lee at Lexington. At the same time hte Cavalier fencers also will make their first appearance of the season at Williamsburg, with the foil men of William and Mary as their hosts and opponents.

Landis' Power Tested in Court

Browns, Milwaukee Seek Injunction to Complete Deal.

Outfielder Bennett Is Seeking Free Agency as Trial Begins.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—In the same Federal court where he leaped to international fame by nonchalantly fining the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana $29,000,000 in a rebate case back in 1907, Kenesaw Mountain Landis today fought as a defendant against a legal move to test his dictatorship over the ranks of organized baseball.

The case which threatened to usurp his power was brought by the Milwaukee Club of the American Association, which sought an injunction to restrain Commissioner Landis from further interfering with the movements of Fred Bennett, a fair outfielder. The suit was filed when Commissioner Landis ordered Milwaukee to return Bennett to the St. Louis Club of the American League on the grounds that his movements from club to club in the St. Louis farm system were in violation of the major-minor league agreement.

Landis Depends On Counsel.

Commissioner Landis failed to appear personally in court today, leaving his case solely up to his counsel, George Miller, of Chicago. The plaintiff was represented by Guy Peters, another Chicagoan, while Bennett, seeking a free agency with Commissioner Landis' help, was in court and represented by David Stotesbury, of Chicago.

Most of the opening session today was "mild," being taken up almost wholly with a great mass of evidence in the form of stipulations, designed to prove the plaintiff's case that Landis overstepped his bounds in the case and to prove the defendant's plea that Bennett's release on option during 1928 to 1930 was contrary to organized baseball rules. All of the witnesses, powers in the minor and major league baseball world, were called by the plaintiff, but only a few were cross-examined by the defense.

The plaintiff sought to show that Bennett was a willing party to the agreement and that the farm system was common in organized baseball.

Says Bennett Preferred Milwaukee Berth.

Louis Nahin, Milwaukee president, testified that in 1930 the Browns wired requesting that Bennett report for duty with them and that he asked to be left at Milwaukee. Marty Berghammer, Milwaukee manager, said Bennett told him in the training camp last spring, after he had been sent to Milwaukee by the Browns, that he was "tickled to be with Milwaukee" and that he did not think he had a chance with St. Louis because the outfield was set, while Manager Killefer, of the Browns, testfied that Bennett told him he was glad to go to Milwaukee.

Babe Ruth Confesses He'll Slam "Dead" Ball

New York, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—The prospect of having to hit a changed ball during the 1931 baseball season does not worry Babe Ruth at all. In fact, he rather likes the idea.

"Say, you can make that ball all cover and let the stitches stick out like grapevines and I'll still hit it," was the Babe's opinion on the recent changes in the pellet. "I hit that ball when it was said to be dead, back in 1918 and 1919, and I sailed a lot of those 'dead' balls a lot of feet.

"The ball will go if it's hit. The good thing about the new arrangement is that a lot of poorly hft balls won't go so far. There won't be the percentage of fluke homers there has been."

Spring Football Ban Adopted by Army

West Point, N. Y., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Spring training of Army's Football Squad has been abolished, Maj. Philip B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics at the United States Military Academy, announced today following a meeting of the athletic council.

The action of the council was based on the theory that each sport has a definite season and that the spring months should be devoted to activities appropriate to that period of the year, Maj. Fleming said.

Wade Signs Sington As Duke Cub Coach

Durham, N. C., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Wallace Wade, Duke University football coach, today announced Freddie Sington all-American tackle at Alabama last fall, had been signed as freshman line coach at Duke. Sington will report next fall.

Sington starred at Alabama for three years at guard and tackle. In 1929 he was chosen all-southern tackle and his play last season gained him a place on both the Associated Press all-southern and all-American teams. His home is in Birmingham.

In some years he has earned more than $100,000 in flat racing alone, and in the 13 years from 1910-1923 he rode winners of stakes valued at $1,265,000. Steve hit a record run of misfortune for English tracks when he lost 108 consecutive races

BAER FIGHTS LOUGHRAN TONIGHT

Bout May Determine Status of Coast Heavyweight.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—The question whether Max Baer, the big Californian, is the youthful hope of the heavyweight division, or just another preliminary fighter, will be answered tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden—barring accidents, long and short counts, and fouls.

The lanky walloper from Livermore, Calif., tackles Tommy Loughran, former light-heavyweight champion and quite a heavyweight until he ran into Jack Sharkey's smack to the temple in the feature ten-round bout. Max lost his opening engagement here to Ernie Schaaff, Boston blond, but showed considerable punch and promise.

In his second start he elbowed Tom Heeney from the ring in the third round after losing the first two and won a knockout verdict when the officials scrambled the court and clipped two seconds off the Hard Rock's normal allowance. Baer must win this one decisively or start the next time at a lower level.

Baer has been training at an outdoor camp and will scale about 199 pounds. Loughran has shaved his weight to 183 in winning decisions recently over Dick Daniels and Jack Grosso. He has been boxing prettily in training and appears to have regained much of the speed and cleverness he displayed in dominating the 175-pound division. Baer's walloping ability has made him a 7-to-5 favorite.

Two ten rounds supporting bouts bring together some of the rising youngsters. Ralph Ficucello, former amateur champion, tackles Paul Swiderski in one match, while Stanley Poreda, a rising threat from Jersey City, tackles a big newcomer, Walter Cobb, of Baltimore, in the other.

G. W. Swimmers Face Hopkins Here Tomorrow

Swimming returns to the competitive sports curriculum of George Washington University tomorrow night when the newly organized Colonial natators engage the Johns Hopkins Blue Jays in the Ambassador Hotel pool, starting at 7:30. The G. W. team will be out to square accounts, having dropped a decision to the Baltimoreans last winter by the scant margin of two points.

In their only competition thus far this season, the George Washington swimmers scored 20 points in the meet recently conducted by the Washington Swimming Association. The following named compose the G. W. squad: William Thomson, N. L. Burnside, Norton Klein and Walter Nimroe, free style; Benjamin Goldberg, Oliver Paga and Max Rote, back stroke; John Redmond, 440 yards; Edward Kennedy, breast stroke, and Edward Strauss and Henry Amos, diving and breast stroke.

THREE PREP SCHOOL GAMES

Prep school basket ball teams will not mark time today as the high school fives battle for the championship. Three games are on the books, chief of which appears to be the St. John's-Woodward tussle this afternoon at the Y. M. C. A.

In the other prep events Gonzaga is slated to play the crack Boys' Club team, at the Boys' Club while Emerson plays Staunton at Staunton.

RALLY WINS FOR C. U. FROSH

Central Bows, 29-28, After Leading Near End, 28-22.

TRAILING 22 to 28, with but two minutes left of the game, Catholic University's freshman basket ball team yesterday found time enough left to defeat Central High, 29 to 28, in one of the most stirring finishes of any game played at Brookland this year.

Central had staged a good second-half drive to take command of the situation with the end of the game in sight, but reckoned without McVean and Flynn, Catholic forward and center. McVean came through with two long shots and a foul toss, while Flynn added a basket to the C. U. total in the dying moments of the game.

It was a nip-and tuck battle all the way, Catholic led, 11 to 7, at the half, White having exhibited a real shooting eye at the start of the game. Central's marksmen began sharpshooting soon after the start of the half, but could do nothing at the very end of the fray to stop the C. U. spurt.

MOUNT RAINIER WINS.

Te lowly Mount Rainier Basket Ball Team created the major upset of the Prince George Basket Ball League last night at the Hyattsville Armory by taking a 28-to-19 decision over the league-leading Renegades.

The Renegades led at 13 to 11 at half-time, but were swept aside in the second half by the fine play of the eventual winners.

In the preliminary, the United Typewriter Uniteds defeated Company F, 18 to 13.

Win Assures At Least Tie For Title

Business Obstacle in Path; Central and Western Clash.

Games May Result in Four-Way Deadlock for Lead.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

	W.	L.	Pct.
Eastern	4	2	.667
Tech	4	3	.571
Business	3	3	.500
Central	3	3	.500
Western	2	4	.286

POSSIBILITIES of a four-way tie in the high school series loom today as Eastern attempts to hold its first place position at the expense of Business, at 3:45 o'clock, followed by Western's series swan song, against Central.

Possibilities, but hardly probabilities when one compares the Eastern and Business teams with something akin to a critical eye. Eastern suffered a 28-24 beating at Business' hands January 20, attributable to the more than finite play of Bobby Lucas, of Business, and the inability of Bill Noonan, series high scorer to do his best because of illness. Things are greatly different today. Eastern and Noonan appear to be on top of their stride, while Business has been struck the blow of losing Lucas.

Eastern Near Title.

Eastern appears to be on the brink of the title. By downing Business today it can reach a percentage where no team can pass it. Either Central or Business may tie it. Whatever decision is handed down by the court of high school principals over the Tech-Central affair will have definite bearing on which of these two teams has a chance of slipping into a berth adjoining Eastern's.

Central, to be considered for such future honors, must come through today against Western—and it promises to be a large assignment for the Blue and White. Western holds a 27-21 victory over Central and is not going to pass out of the picture today with anything resembling passive submissiveness.

North Carolina Five Defeats V. P. I., 30-24

Special to The Washington Post.

Blacksburg, Va., Feb. 5.—University of North Carolina basketeers rolled up a commanding lead in the first half to dawn V. P. I., 30 to 24, on Memorial Hall court tonight. Trailing 21 to 7 at the half, the Gobblers came back with a great game in the final half and several times threatened to pull themselves up on even terms.

Capt. Marpet, Dameron and Hines had a field day in the opening minutes, hitting the hoops at short range time after time to count 17 points in the first 12 minutes before Palmer scored from beneath the basket. Coach Rhoades rushed his sophomores to the firing line and Bosley and Seamon sank sensational shots as the half waned.

Barely 5 minutes were ticked off after intermission before Hall, Bosley and Seamon had counted 9 points and the Carolinians fighting—like demons, Hall outsmarted the Tarheel defenses to sink three baskets but Moore and Smith counted at opportune times to halt the rally.

Gonzaga Triumphs Over Devitt, 28-15

Gonzaga took Devitt into camp last night at Gonzaga by the score 28-15 in a game in which Gonzaga was never headed on its march to the victory.

Devitt, showing rustiness in one of its few scheduled appearances of the year, fell an easy prey to Gonzaga's well-timed attack. It could do little in an offensive way, scoring but 6 field goals during the entire fray.

Tom Nolan, with 9 points, contributed the best individual shooting performance.

AMERICAN LEAGUE DETERMINED TO CURB HITTING

Await Result Of Change In Ball

Experiments May Be Continued, Says Barnard.

Raised Seam Is Only Shift in Ball for oming Season.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—The American League has adopted a new ball, with heavier stitching only as an experiment to curtail hitting, Ernest S. Barnard, president of the league, explained today.

If the new ball, which will be kept in use during the 1931 season, does not serve the purpose, he said, then the manufacturers will be asked to experiment further by altering the make-up of the inside of the ball.

"The manufacturers of the ball, since the agitation against the so-called rabbit ball started, have insisted that no change has been made in the inside of the ball in many years," said President Barnard, in explaining his stand on the question. "However, they did make a change in the stitching four or five years ago when it was discovered the thread in use broke frequently.

"To eliminate this trouble a finer thread of greater tensile strength was adopted. At the same time the sewing was done so as to keep the stitching flush with the cover. The countersinking of the stitch lessened the chances for the pitchers getting the proper grip on the ball. Consequently, pitching as a whole became less effective.

"The new ball restores the raised seam, a coarse thread and longer stitches will be employed. The raised seam will afford the pitchers a better grip, enabling them to increase the spin of the ball and give it a better curve or break. The raised seams also will increase wind and air resistance, thus making it seem reasonable that the new ball will not travel as far when hit.

A. A. V. Court Play Draws League Fives

At least five of the ten teams holding franchises in the Sunday School Basket Ball League will enter the A. A. U. championship tournament, which gets under way March 9 at the Tech High School Gym under the co-sponsorship of The Washington Post and the District of Columbia Association of the Amateur Athletic Union.

This is the prediction of Paul Gottwals, chairman of the Sunday School League. Gottwals also said that league teams which already have signified their intentions of entering are the Eldbrooke M. E. five, the United Brethren quintet, and the Petworth M. E. combination, each one a prominent pennant contender in this circuit. Two or three other teams in the league practically are certain to enter the tournament, Gottwals declared.

Application Blanks Available.

More than 500 application blanks for the registration of the District of Columbia Association of the A. A. U. already have been distributed by The Post to various team managers who have applied for them. The heavy demand for these blanks has necessitated the printing of several hundred more which may be secured any afternoon or night at the sports department of The Post. William E. Russell, chairman of registration, also is distributing blanks at 1503 North Capitol street northwest.

A. A. U. registration blanks for 145-pound and unlimited teams must be placed in the hands of Mr. Russell at the above address by tomorrow. Teams in the 100, 115 and 130 pound boys' classes, and the two girls' classes, for those under and over 18, have until February 27 to comply with this requirement.

All Amateur Teams Eligible.

Any amateur team in the District of Columbia and vicinity is eligible to participate in the tournament provided it complies with two requirements. First, the team must be composed of 10 players or less, each one registered by the A. A. U., and second, each player in the 100, 115, 130 and 145 pound boys' classes must not exceed the weight limit prescribed for the particular class in which his team competes.

Washington-Lee High Nosed Out by Woodward

Woodward School's Basket Ball team continued its winning ways yesterday at the Y. M. C. A. when the Washington-Lee High Team was defeated by the score of 28-25. The Y. M. C. A. boys continued the concentrated team play which has so improved their effectiveness of late, and once more deserted the zone defense for the man-to-man style of guarding.

Maniscalco and Groff again attended to a major portion of the Woodwardians' scoring, distributing 18 points between them. At the halfway mark W.-L. led at 10-8.

VALLEY WINS SPRINT AT MIAMI

Filly, Choice, Gallops in Four Lengths Ahead of Bruno.

HIALEAH RACE TRACK, Fla., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Making her first start of the winter season, Valley, a 4-year-old filly from the Kilrane Stable, easily won the best offering on the Hialeah Park card today.

The filly, one of the several form horses that held their own over the drying-out track, was a hot favorite and never gave her backers any worry. With Jockey Long in the saddle, she got away winging and, at the end of the 6 furlongs, held a four-length advantage over R. Wingfield's Bruno, with F. W. Callaghan's Mineralogist, a half-length back, in third place.

As the favorite, Calley paid $6.40 for $2 and stepped the 6 furlongs in the good time of 1:13.

STOCKS' INDEX DIPS; LOSSES ARE SLIGHT

RAILS STEADY AND DULL.

New York, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Grown impatient with the feeble efforts of bulls to squeeze a profit out of the stock market, bears tried their hand at it today, but accomplished nothing to boast about.

A few shares were depressed rather sharply for a time, but the financial markets generally maintained an even keel, and the bond division continued its improvement. Wall street was not much impressed by the tactics of professional traders in the share market. The price index of 90 shares lost only 9-10 of 1 point.

With the public still declining to be enticed into the buying side of the share market by bull pool activity and refusing to be worried into selling by the prodding of bears, the day-to-day traders have found the share market hopelessly unresponsive.

1,500,000 Shares Traded.

Today's trading aggregated 1,500,000 shares, duplicating yesterday's turnover. The steels and some of the chemicals and specialties went down rather easily for a time, but such issues as oils, motors, coppers and rails, in the main, were sluggish and about steady. Short covering canceled much of the extreme losses in the final dealings.

Lambert and Eastman dropped 6 points, then reduced their losses to about 2 and 4 points, respectively. Allied Chemical and Columbian Carbon dropped 5 and 3 points, but closed off only about 1. Air Reduction regained half of a 4-point loss. U. S. Steel was a bear target and closed off 2 points after declining 3 to touch its January low. Shares ending the day a point or so lower included American Can, American Telephone, Johns Manville, New York Central, Byers, Bethlehem and Westinghouse.

A few specialties were bid up, against the general trend. Crucible Steel shot up 4 points in a fair turnover for this issue, and Checker Cab, Gillette and Congress Cigar gained about 2 each. U. S. Industrial Alcohol dropped 4 points, but shorts covered on publication of its earnings report, and it closed off only a fraction.

Dow Theory Discussed.

Traders who subscribe to the Dow theory of stock movements found the action of the market rather discouraging, for the industrials, as measured by the price average of 50 issues, has now twice met strong resistance in the past fortnight, as it approached the peak level of the new year, reached on January 8. The Dow theory holds that a major advance would be indicated only should the industrials now break into new high ground for the movements and "confirm" the new high made by the rails on January 26.

News was rather meager and of little apparent influence on the share market. The recent strength of Eastman was apparently in expectation of the announcement of the perfection of a new movie film. The chemicals were unsettled by price cutting in some products, as sulphuric acid and carbon black. The oils were apparently not disturbed by reports of fresh gasoline price cutting in Denver and Detroit.

Although monthly chain store sales reports for January compared more favorably than those of December, these issues marked time. The General Motors earnings statement appeared to have been largely discounted in advance. Bethlehem rallied but slightly on formal announcement of acquisition of McClintic-Marshall.

Cotton Scores Large Gains.

Cotton was a star performer in the commodities, closing 65 to 90 cents a bale higher, partly in sympathy with Liverpool. Wheat futures closed irregularly, off ⅜ to ⅝ of a cent. Corn lost ¼ to ¾ of a cent.

Foreign exchanges were inclined to ease slightly, although sterling cables, at $4.85 15-16 were off only 1-32, and it was learned that a balance of $165,000,000 is being kept in New York, which may be used to support the rate when gold losses are threatened.

The reported movement of funds from New York to London to take advantage of higher interest rates may have slackened, accounting for the slight reaction in sterling exchange. Credit rates in this market held stationary. Weekly brokers' loans showed another small reduction—amounting to $18,000,000—carrying the total to new low, of course, for the present compilation.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Further advance in cotton at the opening today met a little more Southern selling and realizing, but offerings were absorbed on moderate reactions and prices firmed up again later on continued trade buying and covering. May contracts after selling off from 10.90 to 10.80 advanced to 10.97 in the late trading or 15 points net higher, and closed at 10.95. The general market closed firm at net advances of 15 to 18 points. The opening was steady 6 to 10 points higher in response to relatively firm Liverpool cables. There was spot house buying of near months and some trade buying on covering in later deliveries, but the initial advance appeared to be bringing in a little more realizing and Southern selling. This supplied the early demand and prices eased back to about yesterday's closing quotations with March selling off from 10.65 to 10.56 and October from 11.40 to 11.30. Trading continued, however, while offerings tapered off again later in the day and there was another flurry of commission house buying toward the close which sent prices up to 10.71 for March and 11.49 for October or about 15 to 16 points net higher on the general list. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the best.

Local brokers said there were more or less trade buying in the near months during the entire day, while some buying of later deliveries was attributed to brokers who are credited with sometimes operating for the cooperative interests. Reports of a strengthening statistical position of Indian cotton in India and the recent steadier ruling of Egyptian have been mentioned as probable contributing factors on the advance which at the high prices of today is amounted to about $6 per bale from the low records touched during the middle of last September. Houses with Japanese connections were credited with buying here again today and there were reiterated reports of prospects of increased activity in the Japanese mills beginning next April.

Liverpool reported continental and Bombay buying in that market, with contracts scarce. Exports today, 14,626, making 4,518,222 so far this season. Port receipts, 18,831. United States port stocks, 4,045,340.

UPSWING IN BONDS SHOWS SLACKENING

Pace Set in Earlier Hours by U. S. Issues Subsides Through List.

UTILITIES MOVE AHEAD

New York, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—The bond market made further progress today although suffering somewhat by comparison with the broad movement in previous sessions this week. The changes in the price structure with the exception of the sharp uprising of United States Governments bore more resemblance to what the market regards as normal.

The session started off at a good pace, but was unable to maintain it and activity slumped and prices of United States Governments and bonds in some other sections sold off from the day's peak. Nevertheless the performance of the Government group, especially the long term Treasury issues, in registering gains in one day that ordinarily do not accrue in weeks, was the most brilliant.

The day's gains were as high as 11-16 in Treasury 3¾s. Other advances were as follows: Treasury 4¼s, 19-32; 4s, ½; 3½s of 1940-43, ½, and 3½s of 1943-47, 7-16. Liberties crept a small fraction higher. They are within a point of the year's maximums.

The improvement in utilities overshadowed that in the rails, which was confined to a comparatively small list. With prices of some of the most active prime investments nearly back to the highs for the last two years traders switched to others offering attractive yields.

American Telephone 5s of 1946, climbed a point to a new high at 107. Duquesne Light 4½s, Interborough Rapid Transit refunding 5s, International Telephone 5s, Louisville Gas & Electric 5s, New England Telephone & Telegraph 4½s, New York Edison 5s, Pacific Telephone & Telegraph 5s, Utility Power & Light 5s were among strong utilities.

Gains in the foreign section were the best of the week.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

ONE PRINCE GEORGES BILL PASSES HOUSE

Measure Provides Ten Years to Pay Assessments on Paving.

TWO OTHERS PENDING

Of the three Prince Georges County bills introduced in the Maryland Legislature at this term, only one has been voted upon by either house. One of the others has been referred to a committee, and the other has been referred back to the county delegation for report.

Delegate William F. Keys' Brentwood bill has been passed by the house and will be passed by the senate after an amendment to the title. This bill provides that residents of the town shall have ten years to pay their paving assessments, rather than four, and also allows the town to borrow 6 per cent of its assessed value. The previous limit was 4 per cent.

Delegate Oliver Metzerott's Bladensburg flood-control bill has been referred to the committee on roads and highways, which has not yet met. The flood bill will authorize the State Roads Commission to build such dikes and embankments as are necessary to prevent the floods which usually inundate the town each spring. While the bill applies only to the county, State funds appropriated for the commission will be used, so that it must go to committee.

The third bill is that providing that Edmonston road shall be financed by the county. This has been referred to the Prince Georges delegation for their recommendation or disapproval. It will be voted on after they have made a report.

It is likely that another bill providing for increased county aid for the volunteer fire companies will be given to the delegation for introduction by the end of next week. A special committee of the county Firemen's Association has been drafting the legislation, and it will be approved by the association at its meeting next Wednesday night in Brentwood.

A fifth bill, which will probably be introduced at this session, is that providing for a county building in Hyattsville. While it is not at all sure that this will authorize the construction of a new building, it is likely that some legislation will be passed to establish branch offices of various county agencies in that town.

It is reported that at a recent meeting of the Prince Georges County Federation of Women's Clubs, only one club voted against the proposition; showing that there is good backing for the measure. However, no bill has been offered to the delegation, and it is not known what organization, if any, is drafting one.

Four men, one of them colored, were seized early yesterday morning when county policemen raided a still in the vicinity of Brandywine, Md. Thirty-eight cases of alleged liquor also were taken.

The men are Norman and Meredith Davis, brothers; John Noyes and Charles Tyson, colored, of T. B. The other men are said to be from Washington. Norman Davis was charged with having concealed weapons, and the other three were charged with possession. All were released on bond of $500.

The still was dismantled and had just been loaded on a truck to be moved, according to the officers. The truck was seized, as was an automobile which was found in the liquor store house.

Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, will be the special speaker at the quarterly meeting of the Pomona Grange of Prince Georges County to be held in College Park, February 12. P. E. Clark, assistant county agricultural agent, also will speak.

Both of these will speak at the afternoon session of the grange, which will be open to the public. The newly elected officers of the Pomona Grange will be installed at a secret morning session. The degrees will be given by the degree team of the Student Grange at the college, which is acting as host to the Pomona Grange.

Judge Retta D. Morris, of Hyattsville, will take charge of the Red Cross relief work in that town, having been appointed chairman in charge of that territory. Judge Morris is president of the Associated Charities of Hyattsville, which is cooperating with the Red Cross.

With a group of women volunteers, Judge Morris is having clothing given to the Red Cross repaired and put in order for distribution. The garments are received and distributed from the vacant store on the Baltimore boulevard near Spencer street.

The organization hopes to provide clothing and shoes for every child in school, and to furnish lunches for poor children in the Bladensburg and Edmonston School.

Associated with Mrs. Morris are Mrs. G. Shearman James, Mrs. William E. Howard, Mrs. Robert B. Morse, Mrs. Harry R. Hall, Mrs. Paul S. Herring, Mrs. Theodore J. Vandoren and Mrs. Dwight B. Cole.

Meantime, in Riverdale, Mayor Max Vollberg, who is chairman of the Red Cross drive in that town, has selected his committee and assigned them to the territories they will canvass.

Solicitors and their territories are: Pierce, Cleveland, Harrison and Maryland avenues, Mrs. Brice Bowie; Washington, Jefferson and Madison avenues and the Boulevard from Madison to Pierce avenues, E. W. Reibetanz; Lincoln, Jackson, Monroe, Buchanan, Beale, Garfield, west of railroad, and Boulevard from Madison to Monroe avenues, A. H. Seidenspinner; east of railroad and south of Jefferson avenue, J. B. Waters, jr.

East of Railroad, Jefferson, Madison and Lincoln avenues, J. Wilson Ryon; east of Railroad, Adams, Jackson and Ashland avenues, Mrs. Blanche Moulden; section west of boulevard, Mayor Vollberg and Dr. R. A. Bennett.

The committee will meet tonight at the home of Mayor Vollberg to report their progress. Mrs. Herbert Roby has been selected by the central committee of the Red Cross in the county to handle applications for assistance from Riverdale.

A discussion of production and marketing problems of tobacco growing will mark a meeting of growers tonight at 7 o'clock in the hall at Piscataway.

W. B. Posey, county farm agent, will speak on production and L. P. Ranft, of the Maryland Tobacco Growers Association, will discuss marketing. Meetings already have been held at Marlboro, Baden and Mitchellville.

For the benefit of the Bowie Public Library, a moving picture show was given last night at the school, refreshments were sold and there was music by Mrs. Charles Jaeger.

Some of the funds received from membership fees have been used to repair the library building and the trustees desire to replace this. About $130 will be available for new books if this is done.

A card party for the benefit of St. John's Church at Broad Creek, Md., will be held Saturday night at the church hall. It is given by the Weneedu Club of the church. There will be tables for pitch and 500 and a number of prizes.

MUSIC LEADER

NEW TRIAL MOTION BY BRADY REJECTED

Brother to Be Heard Upon Murder Count on February 16.

SENTENCE IS DELAYED

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 5.—Lawrence Leroy Brady, Washington mechanic who last Friday was adjudged guilty of second degree murder in connection with the death of Naomi Hall Brady, wife of his brother Herman, today lost a motion for a new trial.

Judge Robert Moss overruled the motion, but withheld his reasons because the trial of Herman is yet to be heard, having been set for February 16.

Defense counsel had five counts in its petition, centered on the claim that the verdict of the jury was not in accord with the evidence.

Judge Moss, in his ruling, commented: "It is true that the verdict of second degree murder seems inconsistent, as it would seem that the decision would have been guilty of first degree murder or not guilty.

"I will not sentence Leroy Brady," he added, "until Herman's trial has been completed. It is my hope that more light will be shed upon the case."

Judge Moss rejected the suggestion by counsel that the trial of Herman should be delayed until March. "The case has dragged now for a year and nearly two months. It is my aim to have it completed so that any appeal that may result can be taken to the Court of Appeals in time for the April session rather than dragging out into fall," Judge Moss opined.

If Lansdale G. Sasscer, of the defense, is unable to leave his duties as State senator, Judge Moss stated, a night trial would be ordered so he could be present.

Mr. Sasscer and Mr. Hampton Magruder spoke for the defense on the motion today, and J. Wilson Ryon, special prosecutor of Prince Georges County, for the prosecution.

Petersburg Man Dies in Colombia

W. H. Muse, 71, Was Visiting Son, U. S. Envoy, When He Succumbed.

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Feb. 5.—A cablegram has been received here announcing the sudden death today in Bogota, Colombia, of William H. Muse, 71, prominent churchman and retired tobacconist of this city, while on a visit to his son, Benjamin Muse, first secretary of the American Legation there. The cablegram did not give details of his death, nor when the body will be shipped home.

Mr. Muse left Petersburg January 6 for Colombia and apparently was in excellent health. He had intended to remain in South America for about three months. A native of Durham, N. C., Mr. Muse had resided in this city for the past fifteen years. He took a prominent part in church affairs, being a steward in Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mr. Muse is survived by the following children: Mrs. A. B. Bradsher, Mrs. C. Frank Scott, of Petersburg; Miss Amy Muse, of Langhorne, Pa.; William H. Muse, jr., of Erwin, N. C.; Benjamin Muse, of Bogota, Colombia; Frank Muse, of New York City; Joel Muse, of Williamston, N. C.

Executive Takes Life by Hanging

Relatives in Baltimore Are to Claim Body of H. C. Dever.

New York, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Harvey C. Dever, 47 years old, vice president of the Petroleum Heat & Power Co., hanged himself late today in his room of a midtown hotel.

Relatives in Baltimore, whose names attaches of his office refused to divulge, were notified and signified that they would come to New York and claim the body. Mr. Dever until yesterday had lived at the Pennsylvania Club.

Police said acquaintances indicated that he had been depressed about something, but could not say what it was.

VIRGINIA'S PROGRESS IN 7 YEARS OUTLINED

Managing Director of State Chamber of Commerce Presents Report.

NATIONAL ISSUES AIRED

Danville, Va., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Virginia's progress during the last seven years and the State's outstanding problems of the future were sketched here tonight in the annual report of Maj. LeRoy Hodges, managing director of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, delivered before the annual meeting of the body.

The report analyzed national conditions and specifically charged that "maladjustment of national machinery" is largely responsible for present unemployment conditions.

"American business depression during 1930 has been beyond question a complement of disturbed economic conditions throughout the world, but nevertheless the most serious element in the domestic situation is unemployment," he said.

Jobless Chief Problem.

"Idle men who want to work constitute a more dangerous surplus than wheat or automobiles. They are not an inert storage of inventory surplus, but a restless force demanding food, clothing and shelter. Aside from public works and other especially provided emergency employment, absorption by establishment of new and secondary industries, creation of seasonal employment, marketing abroad must be developed and maintained as an integral part of any successful plan for permanent prevention of unemployment.

"National development and the formulation and observance of national policies that will strengthen and extend the foreign trade relations of the United States and protect and stimulate domestic business are now problems of the new Virginia in common with the Nation. With a revolutionary industrial development on one hand and labor unemployment on the other, and with increased financial resources and idle wealth face to face with agricultural depression, the Old Dominion has more than a fanciful or sentimental interest in our relation to national affairs.

"In view of these conditions, Virginia is gravely concerned that the United States during the past year has adopted an even more selfish policy of economic isolation and taken position behind higher tariff ramparts.

Production Speeded.

"In agriculture we are producing in many of our important crops more than we can consume, while in our factories and mines we have increased the output per employe all along the line, producing national surpluses beyond our home consumption capacity.

"Widespread agricultural and industrial unemployment has been the result. Yet, as a Nation, we raise our foreign trade barriers even higher, while we buy foreign securities, export agricultural, electrical and industrial machinery to competing countries, establish American plants behind retaliatory tariff walls which are being erected abroad, insist on settlement in gold of war debts by debtor countries buying heavily in American markets, subsidize American shipping, and appropriate hundreds of millions of dollars for farm relief and to carry the burden of industrial unemployment.

"It is urged that one of the surest approaches to industrial stabilization in the United States, and one of the best methods of developing foreign trade, lies in the adoption of a sound labor policy."

New Problems Seen.

At another point in his report, Maj. Hodges asserted that while Virginia is old in the life of the Nation, it is young in "the ways of modern industry and commerce."

"Our people are coming down from the mountain, valley, and in from the farms to work in the new mills that are springing up in our cities and towns," he said. "Reared in the hard school of war-impoverishment, saddled upon them by the disastrous War Between the States, and highly individualistic, poor and in some cases illiterate, these new recruits in the industrial army present a grave and growing problem that will weld the future prosperity of the Old Dominion more and more closely with the national development.

"Confronted as we are today with an unorganized labor surplus—in common with the other Southern States—in the midst of a national industrial revolution, and at a time of general business depression, Virginia is coming to understand and realize her close relation to and actual dependence upon national developments.

Industrial Awakening.

"Upon her thinking and unselfish business men, perhaps more than upon any other group of citizens, rests the heavy but sacred responsibility to help lead the Old Dominion sanely and successfully in this new day of her industrial awakening.

"The future development of Virginia and her proper synchronization with national development will depend very largely upon the intelligence, unselfishness and loyalty of her business men, engineers and industrial executives.

"These leaders appreciate the significance and need for the adoption of sound State policies in harmony with the best and most successful national policies and practices—industrial, commercial, agricultural, financial, social and governmental—and through their service and leadership Virginia may properly hope to find herself."

Illness Is Fatal To F. S. Landstreet

Prominent Coal Operator and Capitalist Succumbs in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Fairfax Stuart Landstreet, of New York, prominent in the coal industry, died at Union Memorial Hospital today after an illness of three months.

Mr. Landstreet was a director of the New York Docks Co. and the Pennsylvania Coal & Coke Co. He was born in Fauquier County, Va., in 1861 and entered the coal business in West Virginia. In 1893 he was appointed general manager of the Davis Coal & Coke Co. and was one of a syndicate which took over the West Virginia Central and the Western Maryland Railroads in 1902, and formed the present Western Maryland Railway.

He served as vice president of the road from 1902 to 1907. At one time he was a resident of Baltimore, but made his home in New York after 1909.

State May Recall Troops in Danville

Acting Adjutant General Is Looking Over Textile Strike Scene.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Feb. 5.—Brig. Gen. S. G. Waller came here today from Richmond as acting State adjutant to inquire into the necessity of keeping troops on duty at Schoolfield. He may remain here over the week-end in order to obtain a clear conception of the whole local situation. He said he would make no report on his decision until he sees the governor.

The belief is that the troops will be withdrawn next week. On October 27 there were 800 soldiers here, but there have been gradual withdrawals until today there are but 200.

With the strike terminated one week ago today, it was learned this morning that not more than 75 former strikers have been taken back to work in the Dan River Mills.

OBSESSED WOMAN JUMPS OFF TRAIN

Thinking She Was Guilty of Crime, Wife of Chicagoan Found in Maryland

SON COMES TO GET HER

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Feb. 5.—Mrs. Lucille Kaminski, 45, and her 21-year-old son, of Chicago, are on their way home today after a strange experience here. Mrs. Kaminski, wife of a Chicago business man, left home Sunday night to attend a church service. Instead, she purchased a ticket and boarded a train for Washington.

Near Harpers Ferry she became obsessed that she had committed crime and was being followed by detectives. At Point of Rocks, 10 miles east of Harpers Ferry, she evaded the conductor, who noticed her condition, jumped from the train and disappeared. Railroad detectives were notified, and the woman was found walking along the road near Washington Junction and brought to Montevue Hospital. At the latter place she spoke the telephone number of her home and then refused to talk and eat.

She attempted to throw away a large roll of banknotes, declaring that she had no use for money. The telephone number call reached her husband, Walter Kaminski, a Chicago grocer, who was seeking information as to the whereabouts of his wife.

His son arrived here last night and was recognized by his mother, whose mentality immediately improved. Mrs. Kaminski said she was unable to account for leaving home.

Lynchburg Loses Point in Tax Row

Petition of Intervention Filed by Property Owners Is Sustained.

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Feb. 5.—Sustaining a petition of intervention filed by Aubrey E. Strode, counsel for Lynchburg Property Owners Association, that no notice had been given to opponents of the stand of the city, Judge Frederick W. Coleman, of Fredericksburg, sitting in Circuit Court here today, dismissed the ex parte petition of the City of Lynchburg by which it sought relief from the order of the board of realty tax equalization reducing the 1930 reassessment by 20 per cent after 1,072 other individual changes had been made by the board.

In a rapid-fire decision Judge Coleman pointed out to City Attorney Hobbs, who filed the original ex parte petition, that proper procedure would be a petition for a mandamus against D. L. Taylor, commissioner of revenue.

City Attorney Hobbs stated preparation would be made to make application for a writ of mandamus against Commissioner Taylor.

He and his family formerly lived on the Raskob estate at Claymont, Del., six miles north of Wilmington. The Centerville estate was purchased several years ago and since then the family has been living there most of the time.

ARLINGTON DISTRICT LIBRARY IS SOUGHT

PRIMARY QUESTION IS UP

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With the approval of the county board of supervisors to the plan proposed by the sponsors of the Arlington District Library, now located in Clarendon, for a county-owned building, a modernly equipped library building in the vicinity of Clarendon, it was learned yesterday, is hoped for during the coming spring.

The library, which was organized eight years ago through efforts of the Woman's Club of Clarendon, has grown from one with 80 volumes to a library of more than 4,500 books. The library opened with quarters in the Clarendon Community Hall and after two years, having outgrown its home, moved to an office room located on Clarendon avenue, where it stayed until last April. With books piled in the cellar of the building and on the floor, it was necessary to seek larger quarters. Its present home is at the intersection of Wilson boulevard and Virginia avenue.

According to officials of the library, it is anticipated that before the present lease expires in April a suitable site will have been found upon which the county will erect a modern library building which will compare with that of Jefferson District.

The library, it was stated, has been financed through the cooperation of a number of civic and religious organizations. The county board of supervisors recently authorized an appropriation to cover the rent of the building during the time of the lease. The move for a county-owned building was determined upon by those that have made the library possible, as it is felt that the county should help Arlington district bear the expense as the library in Jefferson District is a county-owned building and no rent is required.

When and if the new building is provided the library will be divided into departments—the children's section, one for the adults and another where all reference books will be found.

The Arlington County Business and Professional Woman's Club has provided new books for children of the third grade to replace those now at the library and which it is found are beyond repair.

The question of the legality of holding a primary for candidates to the county board which will function in the place of the present board of supervisors under the new form of county government, effective January 1, 1932, and not for other county offices to be filled at the November election, was definitely settled when Thomas R. Mechem, member of the county Democratic committee, announced last night that he has received an opinion on the subject from Attorney General John R. Saunders.

"In the case of the new county board to be elected at large," he says, "the constituted authority is in the Arlington County Democratic executive committee, which has the power to order a primary for the nomination of Democratic candidates August 4, 1931."

While the members of the County Democratic committee have been seen and asked their view on the holding of a separate primary for candidates to the county board there has not been one, excepting Thomas R. Mechem, of Lyon Park, who has made a public statement favoring the holding of a separate primary in August at the time a Democratic primary will be held for Democratic candidates for the State Senate and the House of Delegates.

The Rev. John H. Pearson, pastor of the Clarendon Methodist Church, left yesterday for Harrisonburg, where he will attend the annual meeting of the council of Christian Education of the Baltimore Conference.

The ladies auxiliary to the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday night at the firehouse at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Richard C. Darnel, of Waycroft, and Dr. Norbert Milnick, county sanitary inspector, narrowly escaped serious injury when their automobile collided at the intersection of Clebe road and Garrison avenue in Ballston yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Milnick was driving along road while Mrs. Darnel was approaching the intersection along Garrison road. Both cars turned over several times but no injuries resulted to either person. No arrests resulted.

The Virginia State Highway Department has awarded the contract for the construction of the concrete bridge at Four Mile Run on the Washington - Richmond highway, known as the "Death Trap," to the Northern Virginia Construction Co. The accepted bid was $4,293.

Work will start immediately. The new bridge will be widened to conform with the highway, which is 30 feet in width.

Maj. William King, enjoying good health at the ripe old age of 98, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. W. C. Welburn, of Ballston, left yesterday for an extended trip to Florida, where they will visit relatives at Clearwater.

Plans for the card party to be given under the auspices of the Arlington County Monarch Club the evening of February 13 at the Odd Fellows' Hall in Clarendon were completed at a luncheon meeting held by the club yesterday.

The new headquarters of the Arlington County Chapter, American Red Cross, located in the Rucker Building, at Clarendon, will be open this aftrenoon. All ladies who can assist in helping to put the large quantity of clothing in shape now at headquarters are asked to come to the rooms, which are located on the second floor.

Completing the removal of their Clarendon offices from the Rucker Building to the Spaulding Building, on Wilson boulevard, last night, the Virginia Public Service Company will hold a formal reception to its host of patrons of Arlington County today.

Virginian Faces Charge Of Forgery in New York

New York, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Fortune Odend-Hal, 55, a salesman, who said he came from a prominent Virginia family, was charged with forgery in magistrate court today and held in $5,000 bail. Detectives said he gave a department store saleagirl yesterday a check with a forged signature, and that he had previously given the same store two forged checks.

Yesterday's check, for $9.74, was signed "Frank J. Oliver." A check on January 22 for the same amount, it was charged, was signed "Henry J. Hartswell."

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

NEWS FROM A JUMPY WORLD.

ROME, Feb. 3.—The American Ambassador here has protested to the Italian government against a speech made by Maj. Veturio La Detta in which he pictured President Herbert Hoover as a cold-hearted physical culturist. The major said that a friend of his had been asked to join the President in a morning game of handball with his handball cabinet. During the game the President crashed the ball through a window. It struck an old lady. The President, according to the story, dashed out and recovered the ball but ignored the injured woman. When reproached, he said, "I've got the ball back, haven't I?" The American Ambassador brands the entire story as false and says that anyhow it was not an old woman; it was a congressman.

London, Feb. 4.—An early court-martial of Gen. Hamish ("Lighthorse Harry") Dairymple is expected as a result of his remarks at a banquet of the Fifth Fusileers recently. It is alleged that he repeated a story that an Englishman had told him concerning the President of the Swiss Republic. According to this story, the president took off for a record ski jump in the Alps and landed on a group of tourists. He berated them for breaking his skis and defeating his ambitions as a ski jumper. Gen. Dairympie said that when his friend showed an inclination to apologize to the tourists, the president replied, "What are 30 or 40 sightseers when a new ski record is at stake? Let them eat cake."

All England is agog.

TOKYO, Feb. 5.—A serious diplomatic crisis has arisen here as a result of a few remarks made at a business men's lunch last week by Admiral Okagi Zaki-Zaki. The Roumanian Ambassador demands an apology within 48 hours.

Admiral Zaki-Zaki said that he attended a men's smoker last month at which a traveling man declared that while in Roumania he had seen Mme. Lupescu, while taking King Carol for his morning ride in her motorcycle side-car, run over Queen Helene and five cabinet officers. She then fled without even a "Pardon my glove." When asked later why she had not expressed some concern, she declared that her one regret was that she had not run over Queen Marie, too.

Mme. Lupescu has denied the story. "I would have looked fine driving Carol back to his wife," she exclaimed, "injured or uninjured."

It looks like war.

EGGS are down to 35 cents a dozen. They are so cheap that the hens no doubt wish they had taken up some other way of making a living.

The most encouraging news in the unemployment situation is that Charlie Chaplin has returned to work after five years of idleness. His new picture is not a talkie, but there are sound effects. In other words, there is an audible custard pie here and there.

The State commissioner's report on the suspended Bank of the United States, New York, indicates that the assets were so frozen that the directors maintained a skating instructor on the premises at all times.

SAFE NIGHT DRIVING IS TOPIC AT PARLEY

Highway Conference Opens With Dinner Session at Lexington.

ALL-YEAR ROADS SOUGHT

Special to The Washington Post.

Lexington, Va., Feb. 5.—Methods of making night driving safe were discussed tonight by Col. R. P. Parrott, illuminating engineer, Philadelphia, at the annual dinner held in connection with the sixth annual highway conference which opened here today. The Virginia Highway Commission, United States Bureau of Public Roads, V. M. and Rockbridge County supervisors are cooperating in the event, which has attracted the largest attendance in its history and a record exhibit of machinery.

Discussion during the morning centered upon construction and maintenance of all-year roads, following an address by J. J. Forrer, Richmond, with J. H. Wyse, Rustburg, presiding. C. L. Scott, jr., Danville, spoke upon resurfacing of existing streets and discussion followed by S. L. Van Gemmings, Culpeper; J. C. Carpenter, and B. P. McWhorter, Atlanta.

Delegates were welcomed by Gen. Lejeune, superintendent, while E. A. Snead, Clifton Forge, presided. T. M. Gathright, Covington, was also heard.

During the afternoon a drill and dress parade by cadets at the institute, along with exhibits of equipment, constituted the program.

Maj. A. Willis Robertson, of the department of game and inland fisheries, will preside at the session tomorrow morning. C. A. Hogentogler, Washington soil analyst, will speak upon economical highway construction. Others who are to speak or lead discussions are Shreve Clark, Richmond, and Hunter Miller, Bedford City, who will deal with recent legislation affecting county highways.

In the afternoon, with H. G. Shirley, Richmond, presiding, the chief talk will deal with the part highways have played in the development of Virginia, by C. O. O'Connor, Goolrock, Fredericksburg. Other speakers will be Senator Frank L. Ball, Arlington County, and G. W. Pattison, V.P.I.

HARRY FLOOD BYRD ADVANCES AID PLAN

Would Have U. S. Loan Funds to States on Basis of $50,000 Per County.

FEARS EXTRA SESSION

Richmond, Va., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Former Gov. Harry F. Byrd, Virginia drought relief chairman, urged today that a Federal fund be advanced to drought States on the basis of $50,000 per county, for use on farm-to-market roads, to break the deadlock in Congress and to assure adequate relief.

The Virginia chairman gave his views in telegrams to Senators Carter Glass and Claude Swanson and to John Barton Payne, national chairman of the Red Cross. Mr. Byrd expressed the opinion that an extra session of Congress would be a disaster in that it would seriously retard business recovery.

His telegram was as follows:

"What the farmers in distress from the drought desire is work, if possible, and only charity as last resort. In order to end deadlock between Senate and House, could not fund be advanced by Federal Government to drought States on basis $50,000 each county, to be repaid by annual deductions from future Federal road appropriations and expended on farm-to-market roads, utilizing human labor so that employment can be given in proximity to the farmers' homes.

"The only work beneficial to farmers and farm hands out of employment is work near their homes, so that they can continue to reside on their farms. This proposal, first made by Gov. Pollard, has unanimous indorsement of drought chairmen representing 21 States, and if made effective at once will largely obviate the necessity of charity relief, and in addition give permanent aid to agriculture by improving farm-to-market roads.

"Until machinery is created for expenditure of this fund, the Red Cross can take care of the destitute. While funds so expended may not result in maximum of efficiency, yet, as relief must be given, work is far preferable to charity.

"In my judgement, a special session of Congress will be a disaster and seriously retard our business recovery, and the leaders of both sides to the present controversy should remember that personal opinions and political considerations should be subordinated to the general welfare of the country, especially at this time of the great crisis we are now experiencing."

BILL OFFERED TO AID CABIN JOHN FIREMEN

Maryland Legislature Gets Tax Measure to Provide for Equipment.

INTEREST CUT IS ASKED

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 5.—A number of additional bills, mostly of a local nature to the several counties and Baltimore City, made their appearance in both the Senate and House in course of brief sessions today prior to adjournment over the week-end. Both houses will reconvene next Tuesday afternoon.

Dr. George Edmonds and his colleagues of the Montgomery County delegation in the House sponsored a measure designed to aid the volunteer fire department in the area around Cabin John Bridge. The bill provides for a tax assessment not to exceed 10 cents to create a fund for equipment and general aid for the fire fighters of that section. It was referred to the delegation.

State-wide bills to prohibit the sale of oleomargarine and other substitutes for dairy products were introduced simultaneously in the Senate and House. The bill was offered in the Senate jointly by Senators Ensor, of Hartford, and Withgott, of Talbot County, and in the House by Delegate Heape, of Harford County. Senator Ensor is president of the Maryland bar, Bureau Federation, and Delegate Heape is an official of the State Dairymen's Association.

Would License Open Garages.

Delegate James J. Lindsay (Democrat), Baltimore County, House floor leader, offered a bill designed to license open-air garages and place them under the same regulations as inclosed garages. The measure provides a sliding scale of license fees, ranging from $5 to $200 per year, based upon the area occupied, and also provides that open spaces be maintained for safety purposes.

Mr. Lindsay pointed out that persons conducting open-air garages have an unfair advantage over those indoors, in that the latter already are required to pay a State license.

Mr. Lindsay also introduced a bill providing for a license for all peddlers and hawkers throughout the State. This is an administration measure, prepared by State Comptroller William S. Gordy, jr.

Delegates Dalesandro and Schulthies, Baltimore city, offered jointly a bill designed to reduce the interest fee on petty loans from 3½ to 2 per cent.

To Revise Bank Practice.

Senator Melvin, Anne Arundel County, is the author of a bill to revise the regulations governing banking supervision and the State Bank Commissioners' office. Savings banks would be placed under the same regulations governing banks and trust companies, as to mergers, providing for voluntary liquidation of savings banks, and boards of directors of financial institutions would be responsible for more than one routine supervision of affairs, under the provisions of the measure. The bill also vests discretionary power with the governor in fixing the bank commissioners' salary, and restricts the number of assistants to the commission to eight. The commissioners' salary under existing law is $5,000.

The Senate judicial proceedings committee favorably reported the joint resolution extending the terms of three judges beyond the constitutional retirement age of 70, so that they might serve out terms for which they were elected, and thereby become eligible for pensions. The measure was made the special order of business for next Wednesday.

The judges favored by the resolution are William H. Adkins and Walter W. Preston, of the Second and Third Judicial Circuits, respectively, and Albert S. J. Owens, Baltimore City.

Charleston House Built In One Eight-Hour Day

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—A dwelling has been built here in eight hours. The speed may be accounted for by the fact that 30 carpenters, 10 bricklayers, 5 laborers and a superintendent did the work.

The local Carpenters' Union built the house for one of their older fellowmembers who had been living at a charitable institution.
